Shah intervention fails to end deadlock

Bharat Bandh total in states like Punjab; govt to give in writing proposals to amend the new farm laws today

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

A direct unscheduled intervention by Union Home Minister Amit Shah on Tuesday failed to break the ongoing impasse, with the agitating farmers saying they will not end their protest until the government rescinds the recently enacted farm sector reform laws.

The nearly three-hour-long talks Shah had with a select group of farmer leaders remained inconclusive. The agitators later said the sixth rounds of talks, scheduled for Wednesday, will not take place.

In all, 13 farmer leaders were called for the meeting, which began after 8.30 pm at the International guest house of Indian Council for Agriculture Research in the Pusa area, in the presence of Union Agriculture Minister Narendra Singh Tomar and agriculture secretary Sanjay Agarwal. Eight of the 13 were from Punjab.

Sources said Shah was firm on ruling out a rollback of the farm laws, but was willing to introduce more amendments to address various concerns. However, there were conflicting versions on whether making the Minimum Support Price mechanism legally binding will be part of the basket of proposals the government will give in writing on Wednesday.

Sources said when Shah asserted that the repeal of the laws was out of the question, the farmers retorted that their agitation, too, could not be withdrawn. Shah then came up with the offer of fresh amendments, which he agreed to provide in writing on Wednesday.

Since all 32 farmer unions will meet to take their call on Wednesday, the possibility of a fresh round of talks with the Centre on Thursday exists.

A Union Cabinet meeting is scheduled for Wedneday.

Hanan Mollah, general secretary of All India Kisan Sabha, who was among the participants, said: "No meeting will be held between farmers and the government on Wednesday."

A Bharat Bandh observed by farmers to press their demands evoked mixed response and affected life in some states on Tuesday. Even before the meeting with Shah started, some farmer organisations expressed unhappiness over the truncated list of negotiators.

Besides, Punjab Kisan Union head Ruldu Singh Mansa decided to skip the meeting over a last-minute change in the venue. Earlier, it was proposed to be held at Shah's residence. Speaking to reporters, Mansa said he won't attend the meeting, but it later turned out that he did participate. P9

Karnataka waging war against drugs: Bommai

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka Government is waging a war against the drug menace in the state, said Home Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Tuesday.

Giving out statistics in the Assembly to underline his government's commitment to fighting the drug menace, Bommai said till November-end this year, the state government has registered 3,852 cases under various sections of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act. Out of these, charge sheets have been filed in 2,285 cases.

Replying to Eshwar Khandre (Congress), he said the figure marks a rise in comparison to 1,126 such cases filed in 2017, 1,031 in 2018 and 1,661 in 2019.

Karnataka aims to set up basic labs in all districts while starting five more regional FSLs in Mysuru, Mangaluru, Hubballi, Kalaburagi and Belagavi in a year's time for speedy disposal of drug-related cases, the Home Minister said.

"Earlier, there was a delay in testing at the lab. We have now modernised the FSL in Bengaluru which is capable of testing 51 samples at a time. A separate Narcotics section has been opened in FSL," Bommai said.

The state has cracked 21 dark web cases in Bengaluru alone, which is the highest ever, and the war against drugs has begun, he said.

Bommai said more challenging are synthetic drugs which come in 1 mm by 1 mm strips and cost ₹2,500. This year alone we have seized 5,049 such strips, which was just 155, last year, he added. P4

Land reforms Bill passes Council test with JDS backing

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

AMID stiff opposition by members of the Congress, the controversial Karnataka Land Reforms (Second Amendment) Bill, 2020, was passed in the Legislative Council on Tuesday with the support of JD(S) members.

A lengthy debate over the Bill was held on Monday and Tuesday before it was put to vote. Revenue Minister R Ashoka tabled the Bill in the evening and the Congress members insisted that they don't want a voice vote and demanded for division of votes. When the Bill was put for vote, 37 MLCs, including JD(S) MLCs barring Marithibbegowda, voted in favour while 21 voted against it.

The Bill was passed in the Legislative Assembly in September and was pending before the Council. With the Upper House too passing the Bill now, the decks are cleared for non-agriculturalists to buy agricultural land in the state.

The government had earlier issued an ordinance to repeal Sections 79A (Prohibition on Acquisition of land by certain persons) and 79B (Prohibition of holding agricultural land by certain persons).

Apex court upholds stay on highway project

MEERA BHARDWAJ @ Bengaluru

IN a big win for environmentalists, the Supreme Court has upheld the Karnataka High Court's stay on widening of the National Highway-4A between Karnataka and Goa passing through the fragile Western Ghats. It also dismissed a Special Leave Petition filed by the National Highways Authority of India (NHAI). The agency had challenged the high court's stay order restraining it from carrying on with the project.

The project led to a massive felling of trees by NHAI in Khanapur taluk | EXPRESS

A bench comprising Justices L Nageshwar Rao, Hemant Gupta and Ajay Rastogi, however, granted liberty to the NHAI to approach the Karnataka High Court for any relief.

In November, 2019, the high court, in its interim order, had stayed the widening work on NH-4A as it did not have any valid environmental clearance or other approvals. P7

B'LURU GARBAGE WOES WILL BE SOLVED IN 2 YEARS

Centre to give 40% subsidy; Former minister says plant will cost Rs 350 cr each; meeting to be convened with city MLAs, along with CM BS Yediyurappa

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

THE State government on Tuesday declared in the Legislative Assembly that Bengaluru's garbage woes will be solved in the next two years. Replying to Shanthinagar MLA NA Haris, who raised the issue, Law Minister JC Madhuswamy said that a waste processing plant had been proposed earlier, but was opposed by villagers who did not want it on their land.

Of the total 5,000 tonnes of garbage that Bengaluru produces, 4,000 tonnes will be used in the waste-to-energy plant that is expected to start in the next 24 months. Madhuswamy said that tenders had been called for a plant to generate gas and power.

An MoU will be signed between the government and four companies. "It cannot be done in a day or two, they require 24 months, and once it starts functioning, Bengaluru's garbage issue will be resolved to a large extent," he said. The energy generated can be sold for Rs 7 per unit to the Karnataka Power Corporation Limited (KPCL). If KPCL does not buy it, BBMP can itself use the power.

Former minister and Sarvajnanagar MLA K J George said that the State has to spend ₹350 crore per plant. The Union government provides 40 per cent subsidy, but only after completion, which is why not many are coming forward to invest such a huge amount. "If subsidy is given before work begins, it can be implemented," Madhuswamy said, assuring that a meeting will be convened with city MLAs, along with CM BS Yediyurappa. At present, BBMP is processing more than 1,000 tonnes of wet waste at some of the villages located some 100km from Bengaluru, including Doddabidarakallu, Kannalli, Seegehalli, Chikkanagamangala, and Lingadheerahalli.

Madhuswamy, however, said there is opposition by local villagers in spite of an assurance by BBMP doing it scientifically. "Therefore, we are going for waste-to-energy plants where waste is burnt. The Palike is planning to upgrade collection centres for dry waste in almost every ward."

Citizens' voice in Palike budget: Need better toilets, footpaths

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

THE Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) and Janaagraha, an NGO, launched #MyCityMyBudget — a campaign for citizens' participation in the BBMP budget 2021-22 — on Tuesday.

Palike Commissioner N Manjunatha Prasad had invited inputs from citizens and organisations on how the budget can be improved and what needs to be included and omitted.

He said, "Many have demanded better public toilets and footpaths. Hence, we have asked them to provide details and it will be incorporated in the next budget."

He added, "In 2017-18, we received 22,000 suggestions which helped us a great deal. This year, while preparing the budget, we want to have special focus on public toilets and pedestrian-friendly footpaths. We hope to put an end to public urination with well-maintained public toilets. Let us work together with the funds we have and build toilets that every citizen can use and fix all the roads so that people can enjoy our city and its beautiful weather."

Janaagraha civic participation head Srinivas Alavilli said the 'yellow spots' (public urination spots) are literally a blot on Bengaluru's image. "Public urination cannot be stopped until it becomes a people's movement. We invite all civic organisations to be part of this and also fix our footpaths this year, without fail," he added.

"Bengaluru has several infrastructure issues. The BBMP and Janaagraha are working together to solve these and improve the quality of life," said Janaagraha civic participation head Sapna Karim.

"The campaign is live for a month and focuses on improving public toilets and repairing footpaths. As citizens, we can participate by identifying yellow spots, unusable public toilets and bad footpaths. Once identified, we can ensure they get into the plan of action. Research shows that public urination is connected to lack of public toilets or unhygienic public toilets," she added.

All roads to Aero India '21, KIA getting facelift: Report

It was presented at the Coordination Committee meeting on Tuesday, chaired by Chief Secretary T M Vijay Bhaskar. Top officials of various civic agencies attended the meet.

Aero India 2021 will be held from February 3 to 7 at the Air Force Station in Yelahanka.

Of the 6,664 potholes identified by the traffic police, a total of 2,357 have been attended to so far by the BBMP, a report said.

On the status of various underpasses, the BBMP stated that the process of giving compensation is on to 27 landowners whose property was required for the completion of the Kundalahalli Underpass.

The chief traffic manager, BMTC, was requested to reroute buses from Kundalahalli Junction for three months.

The Suranjan Das Junction Underpass required the removal or translocation of 32 trees. Approval from the Deputy Conservator of Forests is awaited, another official said. "A committee formed by the High Court has inspected them in February this year and cleared translocation of seven trees. HAL has agreed to translocate them in their land," he said.

In connection with a High Court order permitting removal of unauthorised religious structures on public roads, public parks etc, BESCOM officials stated that it would be done after receiving confirmation from BBMP to disconnect power supply to those structures.

BWSSB will complete laying of water pipelines and sanitary lines in the 110 villages in peripheral areas by December end, the utility informed the chief secretary.

Govt schoolchildren struggle with offline classes, want their schools reopened

PEARL MARIA D'SOUZA @Bengaluru

STUDENTS of government schools across the state are demanding reopening of institutions. They are of the opinion that offline classes have many benefits that online classes lack. A student from Karnataka Public School, Kudur, said, "When a teacher teaches in person, it helps us understand better. We want schools to reopen."

"I am unable to understand classes on Chandana TV," said a Class 7 student from another government school, while asking the government to open her school so she can also see her friends.

Experts have often said that the lack of schooling has an adverse effect on the psycho-social growth of students, which is often catered to in schools.

Educationist Niranjan Aradhya, who was a part of the committee that recommended Vidyagama project for government schoolchildren, has written to the Education Minister to resume it. "For the safety of children and their education, schools should be opened before December 15," he added.

Meanwhile, some school development and monitoring committees have launched an online movement on social media, championing the cause of opening schools.

The government's blanket decision to stop all offline classes till the end of December was not welcomed even by the CISCE board, which had sought reopening of schools on January 4.

Kavita Gupta Sabharwal, founder and head of Neev Academy, told TNIE, "We must allow schools that are ready to reopen to do so based on three factors — age, location and resources. Many countries with soft lockdowns are working to keep schools open, and they have been open since almost the start of the academic year. We need to move towards this at least now. Let schools and pre-schools that are capable of it, open, and let's learn from their process."

"Madhya Pradesh has already announced that it will resume Classes 1 to 8 for the next academic year. Younger kids need to come to school too. Covid will leave a lifelong wound in their learning," she added.

Meanwhile, Manjula, principal of Orchids-The International Schools, BTM Layout, Bengaluru, said, "Ideally, we would prefer to continue classes online, keeping in mind the safety of our students and teachers. There is a lot of concern even among parents to send their children to schools, especially with no vaccines in sight. However, if the government announces that we must reopen schools, we will do so and ensure the highest standard of safety is in place."

PETER VIDAL

09th December: After mentioning Mars, yesterday, I've been looking at the number of science fiction stories about Martians. Our modern aliens often come from distant galaxies or other dimensions, but until twenty years ago, Mars was their favoured location. Often, as in H.G.Wells' classic story, 'The War of the Worlds', they were out to conquer Earth. Luckily, we now know they don't exist!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)

Where other people are concerned your mind may just be about to go into neutral., or to put it another way, you may be stuck for words. You'll also be going over old ground in your professional life. I guess it's just one of those times when you can't pretend that the past doesn't matter.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)

Please try and take everything that is suggested or intimated on the work front with just a grain of salt. However hard you probe, nothing of value will be revealed for at least another week. And when it does finally come to light, you will be able to alter your intentions.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)

You don't need an astrologer to tell you that plans are being cancelled and arrangements broken. However, it may help you to know that many other people are in the same boat - you're not alone. It's all thanks to the planets' current uncertain shuffle.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)

The present relationship between Jupiter and Mercury is one which encourages you to fight battles of principle, struggling for what is right. The only question is whether home life and family relationships are the appropriate focus for your energy. I think they are!

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)

Your selfless, charitable instincts will remain strong for the next nine months. Now you must make plans, working out how and when you can best put your skills and resources at other people's disposal. Co-operation is the way forward, even if it means that you have to put one of your own ambitions on hold.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)

Mars is showing you that time is still on your side, so don't reproach yourself if you have been unable to reach certain goals. You can reckon on having ten days to bring your plans to fruition, with a short time afterwards for clearing up all the loose ends.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)

No matter how hard you try to convince people that you know what you are doing financially, it does seem likely that you will eventually have to modify your plans and qualify some of your more determined statements. The fact remains, though, that your ideas are brighter than many people think.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)

There is an air of confusion and mystery about intensely personal interests, mainly due to the fact that Mercury, planet of communication and Venus, ruler of emotion, are occupying significant regions of your horoscope. Plus, your romantic life looks rather expensive!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)

You are not a blinkered person, but you are capable of being deeply dogmatic about your personal affairs. Now, however, a refusal to change or adapt may start to prove rather costly. If there is any way to make the most of your relationships at the moment, it is to try to see how other people are feeling, to understand their desires as best you can.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)

By all means express your opinions and air your frustrations, but please don't be surprised if people in authority react with irritation or attempt to increase your responsibilities. By the way, you are in for a period of emotional secrecy, so you'll be keeping many of your feelings to yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)

One thing is certain, which is that you must conduct all your personal affairs along the highest ethical grounds. This is not in order to make any personal gain, but because it's the right way to live at the moment. One piece of good news is that the pace of life is about to speed up again.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)

It is because you were born the person you are that you must take certain things on trust. So please do not be dismayed or despondent in the face of partners' selfish or pushy ways. You see, you want only the best and the demands you make can be unrealistic.

CFTRI to study SARS-CoV-2 genome sequence

The Mysuru-based institute will partner with a Bengaluru firm to carry out the study as part of a national effort

AJITH M S @Mysuru

MYSURU-BASED CSIR-Central Food Technological Research Institute has partnered with a private firm to carry out sequencing studies on the genome of SARS-CoV-2, which has claimed thousands of lives the world over.

Sequencing the virus' genome will help track its mutations and its growth in the region, aiding ongoing research into a potential vaccine and help assess the efficacy of a particular vaccine against Covid-19.

The collaboration between CFTRI and Bengaluru-based genomics studies institution Clevergene is part of a nationwide genome sequencing effort that involves multiple institutions drawing samples of the novel coronavirus from their respective regions, and CFTRI will pitch in with samples from the Mysuru region.

"It will be a collaborative effort with the firm. We will focus on virus samples from Mysuru region and our efforts will be to find out whether there are any differences in the virus that is infecting people in the region and also find the source and trajectory of the virus," said Dr Prakash M Halami, chief scientist and nodal officer at CFTRI.

Results of the study would be used to find mutations and learn other characteristic of the virus from the region. It would also be used in the development of vaccine candidates as well as develop products that could help mitigate the effects of the virus.

A genomics expert with a centrally funded lab, said requesting anonymity, that the study was much-need, and that more such research from across the country would help understand the mutations SARS-CoV-2 has undergone, where the changes are headed, and how lethal the virus is.

He said that if the research is coupled with a study on the antibody response, it would help gauge the efficiency of vaccine candidates. The research would also perhaps help understand why the spread of the virus declined around mid-October despite a festival season when people gathered in varying numbers sans precautions, the expert said.

One-year-old girl severely ill with Covid needs funds for more treatment

IFFATH FATHIMA @Bengaluru

ONE-YEAR-OLD Vishalini has been in hospital for over a month, battling Covid-19 on a ventilator, her lungs severely affected by SARS-CoV-2.

In the last week of October Vishalini had high fever and trouble breathing. Her parents, daily wage workers, took her to Vani Vilas Hospital on October 26. But since her condition turned more serious, she was moved to Rainbow Children's Hospital on October 30. A test revealed she had Covid-19. Her blood pressure fluctuating, and platelet count low, doctors put her on ventilator as she developed complications of pneumonia.

"Usually, only the elderly are so severely affected by Covid-19. But seeing such severe effect on the lungs in a one-year-old is shocking and surprising for us. Many children who got Covid had mild fever for two or three or four days and recovered well," said Rakshay Shetty, lead paediatric intensivist at the hospital.

A child gets her sample taken in Bengaluru. Most Covid-19 positive children suffer a mild bout of the disease and recover well | MEGHANA SASTRY

A week after she was admitted to Rainbow, Vishalini's condition stabilised, her blood pressure and platelet count returned to normal.

But her lungs continued to show progressive change seen in Covid-19 pneumonia and a CT scan showed over 95% of both her lungs were severely affected. Conventional ventilator support wasn't enough and doctors used Airway Pressure Release Ventilation, but her lungs continued to break down due to the prolonged illness. Doctors then used High Frequency Oscillatory Ventilation which helps when the lungs crumble so easily that they break down and release air inside the chest cavity.

"We did parallel investigation to understand whether there was any underlying problem with immunity but she did not have any abnormality in her immune system. Vishalini was given antibiotics and remdesivir, but she was Covid positive even after 14 days," Dr Shetty said.

Vishalini's lungs still haven't improved and doctors are considering surgically removing a part of her lungs. If that does not work, they will consider putting her on an ECMO machine, which takes over the function of the heart and lungs temporarily so that they can rest and heal.

However, Vishalini's parents need around Rs 15 lakh to pay hospital bill and the cost of surgery. The doctors say they have raised Rs 3 lakh through a crowdfunding campaign, including one on Milaap.

Saktivel, Vishalini's mother, told The New Indian Express, "Whatever savings we had, are all gone after paying for her blood tests and medicines. We have no money and we need funds to treat our daughter. She is our first child and we want her to recover. We need help."

Penalise citizens for not wearing masks, not us, says hotel association

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

MEMBERS of the Bruhat Bengaluru Hotels Association on Tuesday met BBMP Commissioner N Manjunatha Prasad demanding the withdrawal of the recent notification to penalise owners of commercial establishments if customers turn up without wearing masks.

They said that the target of the government should be to penalise rule-breaking citizens and not owners of establishments. They instead demanded that the government set a precedence and penalise politicians, political party workers and agitators for not wearing masks and not maintaining physical distance. They reminded the government of court orders that action should be taken against all those not following rules.

Association President P C Rao said: "It is not possible for people to wear a mask while eating or drinking in restaurants, hotels and in choultries. The government is not clear on its notification. It is the responsibility of citizens to ensure that they wear a mask. However, owners of commercial establishments should also ensure that customers wear a mask at all times, except for eating and drinking."

He admitted that marshals and health officials cannot go to every unit and check if people are not wearing a mask. In such cases, shop owners should act responsibly and create awareness. But the government's orders makes owners responsible for other people's mistakes, which is not acceptable. The government should not see penalties as a source of income for the exchequer, but use them to create deterrence, he said.

BBMP Commissioner Prasad told TNIE: "We have told them that it was the government order and what needs to be done for Bengaluru was issued by the BBMP. The suggestion will be communicated to the government for review." He added that with great effort, the number of cases had come down and that it was now everyone's responsibility to ensure that cases do not rise. Event organisers and property owners must ensure people abide by the rules.

OPPN MLAs DUMP RULE 69 FOR PROTEST

Bengaluru: Between the farmers' protest and Rule 69, the former won. Speaker Vishweshwar Hegde Kageri, who had allowed time for taking up issues under Rule 69, after Question Hour, was none too happy to see empty benches. As the session progressed, it became evident that Opposition legislators preferred to join the action outside. The Speaker expressed displeasure that legislators who had sought information were themselves absent.

FIRST QUESTION, MUNIRATHNA ABSENT

Bengaluru: Munirathna might have waited for close to one-and-a-half years to become MLA again. On the second day of session on Tuesday, during question hour, Munirathna's question came under star questions. When Speaker Vishveshwara Hegde Kageri called his name, Munirathna was not present in the House. When his name was called again, and still he was not there.

FROM KANNADA TO KANNADA!

Bengaluru: In both the Houses, members from various regions speak in different dialects — those from Ballari sprinkle Telugu while those from Belagavi mix Marathi with Kannada. On Tuesday, when leader of Opposition Siddaramiah was speaking for more than one hour, BJP MLA Basavaraj Yatnal told him, "You have spoken at length, allow others to speak." Yatnal who is from Vijayapura has a different accent and Siddaramiah from Old Mysuru was clueless. He asked him to repeat and Yatnal obliged. Even after Yatnal repeated three times, Siddaramiah could not understand. Finally, some MLAs from north Karnataka translated it!

NO ADVERTISING POLICY IN PLACE, HOARDINGS ROCK HOUSE

Congress, BJP united on issue; Demand review of agreement with ad agency

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

CUTTING across party lines, Congress and BJP MLAs claimed that private advertisement agencies were making a huge amount of money but were not paying revenue to the government. With no proper advertisement policy in place, a mafia is ruling Bengaluru, they alleged.

Former minister and Byatarayanapura MLA Krishna Byregowda raised the issue, saying the government, under public-private partnership, had given permission to put up 147 hoardings on BDA land near Hebbal. In return, the agency would have to place some ornamental plants and maintain junctions. The agency claimed to have spent Rs 98 lakh for this beautification.

"In return, the agency is getting at least Rs 1 lakh per hoarding per month. This is nothing but looting. But the government is not getting anything... this agreement has to be reviewed," Byregowda said.

Legislators from the Congress and BJP demanded that the State government review the ad hoardings agency agreement to benefit the government. To this, Law and Parliamentary Minister J Madhuswamy said the agency had gone to court and got a stay order so that no one can interfere.

Byregowda said the contractor has vested interests, and had got the order from court.

BDA is facing a financial crisis and is on the verge of shutting. It needs to be strengthened financially, and the agency agreement has to be reviewed

Krishna Byregowda, Byatarayanapura MLA

"BDA is facing a financial crisis and is on the verge of shutting. It needs to be strengthened financially, and the agency agreement has to be reviewed," he said.

BDA chairman and BJP MLA Vishwanath said many advertising agencies use bus shelters, public toilets, police chowkis to display ads, and according to the agreement, they are supposed to pay rent for using BDA land. Most of them are not paying, causing loss to the BDA.

Minister Madhuswamy said they will check what can be done legally, and discuss it with CM B S Yediyurappa.

Land reforms Bill will encourage youth to take up farming: CM

Earlier in the day, Congress members termed the Bill as "the last nail on the coffin of farmers in the state" and demanded that it should be withdrawn. Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa said the government will never compromise when it comes to safeguarding the interests of farmers. "The amendment is made to better the lives of farmers. It is intended to help farmers who are in distress and it will also encourage youths to take up farming," he stressed.

Congress members alleged that there was an agenda behind bringing the amendment to help corporate and real estate tycoons and that it will have an adverse impact on the lives of farmers. Leader of the Opposition S R Patil said that the conscience of the state BJP leaders was not allowing them to introduce the amendments, but they were compelled to do so by their party bosses.

However, Minister Ashoka asserted that there was no agenda behind the Bill except to help farmers. "We have discussed the changes with the farmers and they have also agreed. Those who buy agricultural land will have to stick to the original plan. If they have bought it to establish an industry, they should set up an industry. If they deviate from the plan, the land will be taken back from them. We are hoping that agriculture-based industries will come up and it will help farmers and generate jobs for youths in the villages".

Will act against recreation clubs, says Home Minister

NOTING that gambling, hookah bars, drug consumption and illegal arms are all interconnected, Home Minister Basavaraj Bommai said action at the ground level and strong legislations are being worked out to control it.

Responding to a question on recreation clubs in border districts engaging in drug-related activities and gambling, Bommai said it has come to the government's notice and "we are taking action against them."

"There has been enough pressure from all quarters, but we have not and will not yield," he said.

The minister said the NDPS Act is a central act by Parliament and any amendments to it have to be done there. However, the state government has power to frame rules under the NDPS act, he said and added that they would also strengthen the Karnataka Police Act.

The state government has also approached the National Law School to help in strengthening the laws against drugs.

Replying to issues raised by Congress members Priyanka Kharge and Prasad Abbayya, Bommai said whitener and certain adhesives were being misused by some.

"We are also conducting raids at hukka bars and need the cooperation of the local corporation," he said.

Post meetings, Singh apprises central leaders of his observations

BENGALURU: BJP state in-charge general secretary Arun Singh, who held meetings with state leaders and legislators here over three days, apprised the party president J P Nadda and central leadership about his observations on Tuesday. Earlier, Singh had received complaints from MLAs, especially chief whip Sunil Kumar, over appointments to boards and corporations that were made unilaterally, without any consultation. They also complained that family members of certain leaders were interfering in government matters. His report also includes details on which legislator is in favour of the state leadership and who isn't. Singh had earlier clearly specified that there was no question of a change in leadership for Karnataka. The party had also cautioned leaders and legislators from going to the media directly with their grievances and complaints. ENS

CONGRESS LEADERS PROTEST, DEMAND ROLLBACK OF FARM BILL

Congress leaders stage a protest at the Gandhi Statue near Vidhana Soudha while the legislature was in session, on Tuesday. They are agitating against the Centre's farm laws, standing in solidarity with farmers | NAGARAJA GADEKAL

OPPOSITION leader Siddaramaiah, PCC president D K Shivakumar, former DyCM Dr G Parameshwara, former ministers R Ramalinga Reddy, Zameer Ahmed Khan and others on Tuesday protested to show solidarity with the agitating farmers, and also against the 'Farm Bill' near the Gandhi Statue on Tuesday.

Despite a mild drizzle, Congress leaders donned black clothes and sat in protest, as they raised slogans against PM Narendra Modi and called the farmer bill "anti-farmer". They insisted that it be rolled back.

Many senior leaders were present as the protests started on Tuesday morning.

Shivakumar said, "This legislation will lead to the destruction of farmers. It is understood to be against the interest of farmers and even international leaders have expressed their opinion that this is against farmers. The legislation seeks to make the farmer a slave again, but we in the Congress back the 'Annadata'. The BJP CM has taken oath in the name of farmers, wearing a green shawl, but is anti-farmer."

Later, some Congress leaders led by PCC president DK Shivakumar , MP Nasir Hussain, working president Saleem Ahmed and others joined the protesting farmers by marching from Town Hall to Mysore Bank Circle and then towards Freedom Park.

The 'protest postcards', with signatures of protesters, will be sent to the President of India through the AICC. Former minister Priyank Kharge said that 8 lakh cards had been despatched through courier on Monday night and had reached the Congress office on Tuesday morning. The general secretary (organising) has been given the responsibility of ensuring these protest cards reach Rashtrapathi Bhavan. Former Congress president Rahul Gandhi plans to collect about one crore signature cards before the party hands it over to Rastrapathi Bhavan.

Oppn wants more cash for farmers

ENS @Bengaluru

OPPOSITION leader Siddaramaiah on Tuesday demanded that the State government pay farmers additional money over the Minimum Support Price (MSP) on crops, as the MSP is not sufficient. However, the government declined, saying it cannot pay additional money this year due to the financial crisis. Siddaramaiah was speaking on the second day of the legislature session.

He said this year, due to Covid and floods, produce had come down by 10 lakh tonnes. The Union government has already announced MSP for 17 crops, including rice, paddy, tur dal, maize, urad dal, groundnut, sunflower and cotton.

Siddaramaiah said if the government does not interfere and give a scientific MSP, farmers will be forced to sell their produce at throwaway prices.

"They are doing it because the government has not opened procurement centres, and should have been done it before the harvesting season began. In Karnataka, they are not open after many weeks. Where should farmers store their produce?," he said, adding that the government was procuring very less produce. Though 29 lakh tonnes of paddy is expected this year, the State is procuring only 2 lakh tonnes, he said.

Law minister Madhuswamy said additional money cannot be paid due to the financial crisis. He assured the House that more procurement centres would be opened, and the government would also procure produce. Unhappy with his answer, the Congress walked out of the House.

Satish Jarkiholi emerges Congress frontrunner for Belagavi LS ticket

NAUSHAD BIJAPUR@Belagavi

KARNATAKA Pradesh Congress Committee working president Satish Jarkiholi has emerged as the party frontrunner for the ticket for Belagavi Lok Sabha bypoll.

Jarkiholi has asked for time to think it over, according to sources.

The bypoll is necessitated following the death of Union Minister of State for Railways Suresh Angadi, who represented the seat, due to Covid-19.

The 11-member selection committee of senior Congress leaders headed by M B Patil held its second meeting in Bengaluru on Tuesday.

The committee held discussions about several top party leaders who have the potential to enter the fray, but Jarkiholi emerged as everyone's favourite. For his popularity and experience, the leaders said, he was capable of helping the party bounce back to power in the constituency.

After his entry into active politics in 2000, Jarkiholi has won as MLC twice and MLA thrice. As MLA of Yamakanamardi constituency for the past three terms, Jarkiholi has given a new fillip to the process of rural development in his constituency and also at his hometown of Gokak.

The committee not only found Jarkiholi a suitable candidate to take on the BJP but also suggested to face this bypoll under his leadership. For the past four terms, BJP's late Suresh Angadi had been winning the Belagavi seat. With the BJP not having a candidate of Angadi's potential in Belagavi to face the bypoll, the Congress wants to grab the opportunity to bounce back.

The name of Belagavi Rural MLA Laxmi Hebbalkar also figured at the meeting, given her popularity and winning chances in Belagavi region. The committee is expected to finalise the candidate within the next few weeks and convey it to the KPCC.

Teams around the world are trying to produce life from bare chemistry, said Nobel laureate (2019) Prof Didier Patrick Queloz. He was speaking at the International Science Fiction Conference 2020 hosted by the Indian Association for Science Fiction Studies and Bangalore University.

FARMERS TO MOVE FROM STREETS TO SOUDHA

Bandh peaceful in Bengaluru; Central Business District affected, APMC yards shut; clashes, biz hit in some districts

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

TUESDAY's Bharat Bandh did not have a major impact on normal life in Bengaluru, but farmers -- estimated to be around 10,000 from several organizations -- took out rallies and held demonstrations at Town Hall and Mysore Bank Circle, affecting traffic across the Central Business District of the state capital.

The protesters blocked Sheshadri Road, Town Hall and Mysuru Bank Circle, shouting slogans against the Central government for enacting the Farmers (Empowerment and Protection) Agreement of Price Assurance and Farm Services Act, 2020; Farmers Produce Trade and Commerce (Promotion and Facilitation) Act, 2020; and Essential Commodities (Amendment) Act 2020.

While larger vegetable markets and the APMC yards remained shut in response to the bandh call, Bengaluru remained normal with shops and commercial establishments open in most parts of the city.

KSRTC, BMTC and taxi services operated as usual around Majestic, Shanthinagar and Satellite bus stop on Mysuru road. While autorickshaws too plied, they were seen in much reduced numbers than otherwise.

The police said no farmers were taken into preventive custody as the bandh remained peaceful in the city, and the authorities had made prior arrangements to allow demonstrations and protests only in specific areas like Freedom Park, Town Hall and Mysore Bank Circle, and had diverted traffic accordingly for the purpose.

However, that did not stop the protesters from blocking traffic on Sheshadri Road and the approach roads to Town Hall, which caused traffic congestion in the Central Business District.

Youth Congress members were seen approaching shop owners, especially in Shanthinagar area, appealing to them to down their shutters to express their solidarity with the farmers.

Meanwhile, Karnataka Pradesh Congress Committee President DK Shivakumar walked with the farmers to extend his support and told the protesters that the Congress party would always stand with the farmers.

SIEGE OF VIDHANA SOUDHA TODAY

Around 5,000 to 10,000 farmers are likely to converge on Bengaluru on Wednesday morning to lay siege to Vidhana Soudha, even as the winter session of state legislature is on since Monday. Traffic may be affected at KR Circle, Mysuru Bank Circle and Sheshadri Road, as farmers plan to surround Vidhana Soudha after the rally begins from Freedom Park.

POLICE, FARMERS SPAR IN KODAGU

Madikeri: Karnataka Raitha Sangha and Hasiru Sene members on Tuesday hosted a protest rally at Thimmaiah Circle in Madikeri. The rally, however, was denied permission by the Madikeri Town police. A minor rift broke out between the protesting farmers and the policemen, as the latter barred the farmers from creating a human chain. The situation was, however, resolved after the farmers agreed to the cops' request to not block roads.

EFFIGIES BURNT IN UDUPI

Udupi: In Udupi, farmer associations were joined by activists and organisations including CITU, CPIM, Kisan Congress, Muslim Okkuta, Dalit Sangharsha Samiti in protest against the Centre's farm laws on Tuesday. As part of the demonstration, protesters burnt the effigies of PM Narendra Modi, industrialists Mukesh Ambani and Gautam Adani.

Businesses down shutters in Mysuru, Chamarajanagar

THE bandh disrupted normal life as businesses downed their shutters in Mysuru and Chamarajanagar districts although the response was mixed in Mandya district. Farmers, joined by Dalit and labour unions, stopped bus services, disrupting movement of long-distance buses from 7 am for an hour.

Rallies, demonstrations and protests were also held in Mangaluru, Belagavi, Tumakuru, Vijayapura, Hubballi-Dharwad, Davanagere, Chitradurga, Raichur, Bidar, Hassan, Chikkamagaluru, Koppal, Kolar and Chikkaballapur.

Though there were demonstrations, the bandh call evoked poor response in Hassan. State transport buses, private taxis and autorickshaws were on the roads as usual in the district.

In Davanagere and Chitradurga, KSRTC and city bus services besides autorickshaws and cabs remained off the roads, but government offices and banks functioned normally. Crowds, were however, noticeably thinner.

In Davanagere, protesters at Jayadeva Circle raised slogans against the Central government and burnt an effigy of Prime Minister Narendra Modi for introducing the farm bills.

In Chitradurga town, protesters took out a march and submitted a memorandum at the deputy commissioner's office.

Can elderly get pension at home, court asks state

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court asked the state government to clarify if citizens above 65 years, who are entitled to pension, can get it without going out of their homes, in view of the pandemic.

Passing the order after hearing the public interest litigation filed by Akhila Karnataka Vayovruddhara Okkoota, the division bench comprising Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice S Vishwajith Shetty said the state government should place on record the procedure laid down for extending benefits to senior citizens to avoid them from going out of home, except for essentials.

One of the grievances made in the petition is that the pension amount payable under Sandhya Suraksha Yojana and Indira Gandhi National Old Age Pension Scheme is not being released regularly. On the last date of hearing, the bench ordered the state government to look into it immediately and take remedial steps, if necessary.

IN THE HC

Pointing out the ordeal faced by senior citizens due to Covid pandemic, the petitioner alleged that the pensions have remained unpaid from January 2020. "They have been left without any monetary support to purchase medication and food required for their survival," the petitioner added.

Some of the senior citizens in cities like Bengaluru depend on Indira Canteens which were also closed since the lockdown and hence they have been pushed to starvation, the petitioner added, while requesting the court to direct the state to release pension immediately and ensure implementation of the Senior Citizens Welfare Fund Rules.

Govt order on midday meal compensation vague, says HC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court on Tuesday said that the order issued by the state government on December 5 will not compensate children who have been deprived of midday meals as schools were shut due to the Covid-19 pandemic. A division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice S Vishwajith Shetty made this observation after department of primary and secondary education principal secretary S R Umashankar appeared through video conference and explained the steps taken by the government to compensate children.

As the bench was not satisfied with the government's proposed relief measures, the hearing was adjourned to December 15. "Meanwhile, the government can come out with a better assessment of the quantity of food grains to compensate the children," the bench added.

The bench observed that the compensation should be in true sense but the government order submitted to the court was vague, as there was no specific mention about the quantity of toor dal.

SWAPNA SURESH CLAIMS DEATH THREATS IN JAIL

Says she was asked not to reveal names of biggies involved in case

Gold smuggling accused Swapna Suresh was detained under COFEPOSA in October

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kochi

SWAPNA Suresh, key accused in cases related to gold smuggling and foreign currencies using UAE diplomats and diplomatic baggage, made a startling accusation before a court here on Tuesday. She said that police and jail officials had threatened and warned her against revealing the names of big sharks in these scandals. She said they had threatened to harm her in the jail and her family outside.

She moved a petition at the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate (Economic Offences) Court seeking protection inside Attakulangara women's jail in Thiruvananthapuram. The court issued a directive to the DGP, Prisons and Correctional Department, to take necessary steps.

While she was produced in the court on the expiry of her customs custody around 5 pm on Tuesday in the currency smuggling case, Swapna, through her lawyer, filed the petition stating that some persons had visited her at Attakulangara prison, where she is undergoing preventive detention under COFEPOSA.

"Some people, identifiable by sight, claiming to be prison and police officials, had visited me and warned me against disclosing the names of people in high places suspected to be involved in the alleged criminal activities and asked me not to cooperate with any investigation agency. They had threatened me that they were capable of harming my family outside the prison and even doing away with my life inside the prison if I indulge in such disclosures," she stated in the petition.

According to her, such threats continued for several days and also on November 25. She is now making these public since her statement has been recorded under Section 164 of CrPC. "My custody is over and in all probability, I will be taken back to the same prison for continued detention. I, therefore, genuinely apprehend danger to my life and body within the jail premises at the instance of highly influential persons."

She asked the court to direct the DGP, Prisons, to provide protection to her inside the jail. The court directed the DGP to take all necessary steps to ensure her protection in the jail. She was remanded to judicial custody.

AP illness: Lead found in blood of patients

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Vijayawada

EXPERTS of All India Institute of Medical Sciences (AIIMS), New Delhi, have found high presence of lead and nickel in the blood samples of people affected by mystery illness in Eluru of West Godavari district. A report on the results of blood samples was submitted to the State Health Department on Tuesday. Initially, 10 blood samples of the patients were sent to AIIMS. After that, 40 blood and urine samples were sent to AIIMS for testing.

"Traces of lead and nickel were more than normal in the blood samples sent to AIIMS. Lead is neurotoxin and affects the nervous system. However, it is too early to come to a conclusion. We may be able to ascertain the cause of the illness after getting the results of blood and urine samples from AIIMS," Eluru Government General Hospital Superintendent Dr AV Mohan told TNIE.

According to the GGH Superintendent, the number of cases came down on Tuesday, compared to the last two days. By Tuesday evening, the number of cases was 565.

A total of 450 patients were discharged from the hospital. At present, 81 patients are undergoing treatment at the GGH. In all, 29 patients were shifted to government hospitals in Vijayawada and Guntur, he said.

Meanwhile, expert teams from the World Health Organisation (WHO) and National Institute of Nutrition (NIN) are conducting community surveys in Eluru. They are also collecting samples of water and milk from the localities where more cases were reported.

NIN is likely to come up with its findings by Friday. Dr JJ Babu, head of the four-member NIN team, said, "Once we do the lab tests, we will be able to pinpoint the cause of the unknown disease."

As many as 22 water samples were tested and no presence of e coli was found in them. However, pesticide residue was found in them. Even the culture test of cerebrospinal fluid (CSF) came negative for known viruses and bacteria. Chief Minister YS Jagan Mohan Reddy, who is closely monitoring the situation in Eluru, held a review meeting with the health officials.

Exploration of Venus is crucial: Nobel laureate

ENS @Bengaluru

TEAMS around the world are trying to produce life from bare chemistry, said Nobel laureate (2019) Prof Didier Patrick Queloz. He was speaking at the International Science Fiction Conference 2020 hosted by the Indian Association for Science Fiction Studies and Bangalore University.

While India is embarking upon Venus mission in addition to the Mars mission, Prof Queloz said that planetary exploration missions are essential to help compare with what we expect is the origin of life on Earth.

The rocks we bring back, he said, are going to find early ingredients -- the building blocks of chemistry that have enabled life.

"Venus is fascinating because it was like earth and possibly was also a blue planet one billion years ago. It is not at all the situation now, after the greenhouse fully dominated the atmosphere. Also, one cannot live there because the plate tectonics seemed to have stopped. However, it's an interesting question as to why and when it stopped while it's still going on here on Earth. If we stopped the plate tectonics here, we could end up like Venus," he said.

Being a difficult planet to land on, he said, the question really is what is the nature underneath of Venus. Additionally, we have no clue on what was going on in Earth during the early development stage as it's completely wiped out. Mars, he said, has some imprint of that stage.

Jupiter's sixth satellite Europa is another point of interest, with many thinking of drilling it to look at what is underneath as it's clear that there are liquid oceans, he said. Prof Sujan Sengupta, Associate Professor at Indian Institute of Astrophysics, Bengaluru, expressed confidence that in the next 10 years we will be able to detect biosignature atmosphere which is essential for life.

KTR & Co ensure bandh is complete in Telangana

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Hyderabad

EXPRESSING solidarity with farmers agitating for repeal of farm laws in Delhi and supporting their Bharat Bandh call, the TRS on Tuesday threw its weight behind them, paralysing mainly transportation on national highways, and forcing closure of shops and establishments in some parts of Hyderabad and elsewhere in the State.

The bandh led to long queues of trucks, buses and other vehicles on the national ways which lead to Mumbai, Bengaluru, Chennai and Nagpur. As the day progressed, scores of TRS workers led by party working president and IT Minister KT Rama Rao, MLC K Kavitha, Finance Minister T Harish Rao organised demonstrations, calling out the Centre for bringing forth the farm laws that hurt the interests of the farmers.

The Congress also organised protests and demonstrations but it did it independently with TPCC chief N Uttam Kumar Reddy leading the protests against the Centre.

The BJP, meanwhile, described the government-sponsored bandh as a sham and said that it was a total failure. The BJP leaders accused Chief Minister K Chandrasekhar Rao of shedding crocodile tears for farmers in a desperate attempt to enlist their support to further his political interests.

At some places, the TRS activists forced closure of shops much before 11 am, the time given by farmers for the commencement of the agitation.

BANDH RECEIVES MIXED RESPONSE IN ODISHA

Bhubaneswar: The farmers' unions call for 'Bharat Bandh' on Tuesday in protest against the three new farm laws received a mixed response in Odisha. The bandh call, however, drew strong protests in some parts of the coastal, western and southern regions of the state. Khurda, Kendrapara, Jajpur, Sambalpur, Balangir, Koraput and Malkangiri districts witnessed strong protests. Commercial establishments remained closed, vehicles stayed off roads and traffic was disrupted on the highways. However, in neighbouring Cuttack, the strike called by the farmers' unions had no major impact in the city apart from some sporadic protests. Malgodown and Chhatra Bazaar remained open during the usual business hours. ENS

One lakh trees axed for highway work: Activists

THE project had resulted in massive felling of trees by NHAI in Khanapur taluk of Belagavi district.

On the 84.3-km stretch, almost one lakh tree had been felled, environmentalists had estimated and filed PIL in the High Court in 2019. In view of the massive and illegal felling of trees, the high court said NHAI had failed to take environmental clearances for the project.

Starting from Belagavi, the 153-km-long NH-4A ends at Panaji in Goa and before touching the neighbouring state, the highway passes through Western Ghats. Of this, 84.3 km falls in Karnataka while 69 km is in Goa.

Since the widening of NH-4A was taken up by NHAI along the Karnataka stretch, activists have been up in arms against the felling of such a massive tree cover.

Besides, the project will fragment and disturb a pristine tiger landscape in Karnataka-Goa as also the corridor that supports movement of wildlife, especially tigers, between Karnataka-Goa-Maharashtra, they argued.

Apart from this, the NHAI neither sought environment clearance nor wildlife or forest clearances for the widening project.

Although NHAI claimed that only 22,000 trees were felled for the project, local activists claimed that nearly a lakh trees had been axed.

Welcoming the decision, the United Conservation Movement said, "This is a great milestone for our case against NH-4A in Karnataka as their SLP has been dismissed. This is the same road that is proposed to be widened through Mollem National Park and Bhagwan Mahaveer Sanctuary in Goa. In Karnataka, we have already lost thousands of trees in Belagavi and Haliyal divisions by the time we got a stay."

FOOD CHAINS, AIRLINES BACK ON TRACK AS COVID FEAR REDUCES

Covid or no Covid, the fear factor seems to be evaporating and people are using the progressive relaxation of civic norms to venture out and do the things they missed over the last eight months. Many crippled industries like restaurant chains and airlines have been beneficiaries of the opening up. Food chains on highways and malls, helped by the festive season, are reporting increasing levels of footfalls, close to the pre-Covid era. The tea café chain Chaayos said it is seeing 75% of its pre-pandemic business restored while McDonald's is reporting brisk business in its highway and small town outlets. Luxury restaurants, cashing in on families wanting to dine out, are making up for the social distancing constraints by keeping their doors open round the clock.

Airline operations too have picked up and are showing robust numbers. The government last month allowed 60% of the flights to operate and the civil aviation minister said that from a low of 30,000 passengers on May 25 when air traffic was first opened, the number of fliers had increased to 2.52 lakh on November 30. Though airlines are taking precautions, the absence of regular public transport like long-distance trains and buses has forced thousands to take expensive flights crammed in like sardines.

Two important changes have happened in recent days. Despite a second wave of Covid infections in many cities, people are willing to take risks to relieve the monotony of working and staying at home. Second, the desperation over survival is forcing people to drop their guard and venture out. Despite the opening up, the preventive measures and possibly increasing immunity have forced down fresh caseloads in the country from a high of 1 lakh a day to below 30,000 currently. Mumbai, which was reporting over 200 deaths a day a few months ago, is reporting less than 10 per day. This is also partly because mass public transport like local trains have not been fully restored, preventing crowding. The acid test will be when normal commuter traffic is back and offices begin to hum again.

MORE WORRIES FOR ODISHA GOVT

The political scene in Odisha, all of a sudden, has become surcharged. The unsolved murder of a minor girl in Nayagarh district of the state has provided just enough ammunition to the opposition to target the BJD government. The case, undoubtedly, was a shoddy piece of police work. The victim, a five-year-old girl, had gone missing on July 14 and 10 days later, her decomposed body was spotted in a bag not very far from the house. Four months into the incident, there has still been no breakthrough in the case. But for the desperate parents' bid to seek justice for their child, the government would not have woken up. The couple recently tried to immolate themselves outside the state Assembly, drawing a minister into the case. The opposition suddenly found an issue to take the government on. Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik directed an SIT probe, but the issue refuses to die down as the Congress wants the minister's resignation while the BJP demands a CBI probe.

Already in trouble, the government has found itself on yet another sticky wicket when the sensational exploits of a senior Indian Forest Service officer and his son came to the fore late last month, and again another ruling party MLA and former minister was found to have close links to the scandal. The high-flying lifestyle of the duo included around a score charter flight trips in the midst of the lockdown and the IFS officer's son is alleged to be involved in a multi-crore job scam in connivance with the influential MLA. He was also soon going to be the latter's son-in-law. Naveen, known to be least tolerant of corruption, spared no time in expelling the legislator from the party. Not stopping at that, he has referred the matter to the Odisha Lokayukta in what is the first graft case to be sent to the anti-corruption ombudsman by the state government since its inception. The decision is welcome, but there is too much at stake given the politician-bureaucrat nexus. Given the high-profile nature of the case, it is necessary that his administration probe how the wrongdoings went unnoticed all this while and bring truth to the fore.

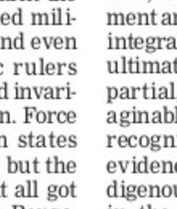
LESSONS FROM OUR PAST: ASSENT, DISSENT, RESENT AND CONSENT



JAWHAR SIRCAR

Retired civil servant. Former Culture Secretary and ex-CEO, Prasar Bharati

AMIT BANDRE

In the 1880s, John Robert Seeley pompously announced that "India is ... only a geographical expression and does not make the territory of a nation" while John Strachey declared with equal contempt that "there never was an India... no Indian nation, no people of India". Like other British imperialist commentators, they were both obviously underestimating the inner strength of a civilisation that had arisen over millennia of coexistence, compromise and consensus. In fact, India and Indic religions have always thrived on a spirit of accommodation with which they co-opted conquering people, from the Sakas, Huns, Turks and Pathans to valiant Ahoms, and harmonised them all within their ever-hospitable self.

Brutality has hardly been the preferred option, as Ashoka realised so early and others learnt the hard way. Indians never led military expeditions abroad and even conquests by hegemonic rulers within the subcontinent led invariably to further assimilation. Force was certainly used when states faced violent challengers, but the point is that, ultimately, it all got over with and life moved on. Bengalis and Odiyas, for instance, carry no everlasting grudge against Marathas for the depredations inflicted on them in the eighteenth century. Intolerant policies of emperors like Aurangzeb, who, incidentally, requires more dispassionate analysis, stand out in stark contrast to the conciliatory spirit of this land. Even in recent times, those rulers who resorted to extremely vehement measures to crush murderous revolts ultimately paid with their own lives. This postulate that has been reduced to just its bare essentials and greatly simplified can surely be contested by quoting exceptions, which can also be responded to. But unless we take a helicopter view and delineate the binary themes of Indian civilisation, we will forever be lost in the labyrinthine lanes of history.

The short point spelt out by Amartya Sen in his thought-provoking book, The Argumentative Indian, and reiterated recently by Romila Thapar in her essay, Voices of Dissent, is essentially that disagreement and discord have always been integral to the 'Idea of India'. Their ultimate resolution, even if it was partial, helped to coalesce unimaginably diverse peoples into one recognisable nation. The earliest evidence of the absorption of indigenous ideas and rituals is found in the Atharva Veda and since then, numerous contesting ideas and practices have been accommodated. The primacy of Vedic religion was contested ab initio by the Shramanas and this gave rise to Buddhism, Jainism, the Ajivika and Ajnana cults, and even Yoga. In his books, Lokayata and Indian Atheism, philosopher Debiprasad Chattopadhyaya demonstrated the strength of materialist and atheist philosophies in challenging the very insistence on devotion, submission and otherworldliness. Thapar has also highlighted the positive role of the Charvaka dissidents. Though conflicts between core Vedic thought and others were often sharp and bitter, at that early stage, there is no evidence of physical retaliation or the crushing of dissent. Over time, we find that the finest ideas and practices of Buddhism and other Shramana institutions were absorbed by Brahmanism, which enriched itself thereby. Thus, the religion that emerged as a consequence adopted saffron as sacred and abjured the sacrifice of cattle, giving rise to vegetarianism and ahimsa or non-violence. Bhiksha (alms), Bhikshu (monks) and Mutts (monasteries) were other cardinal contributions that post-Vedic Brahmanism accepted from its rivals. Come to think of it, if Vedic sacrifice and Brahmanical rites had been left unchallenged, most of us would perhaps still be consuming voracious amounts of beef.

It would be unwise for any regime to treat every emblem of cultural autonomy to be heretical or every protest as treason. Dialogue and discussions are imperative so that course corrections can be made

Dissent can, therefore, hardly be equated with sedition and steamrolled with 'macho' measures. Repeated electoral victories often convey a sense of entitlement and may trigger urges to contain or overawe those who do not concur. But as mentioned, resentment also plays a positive role in steering regimes and philosophies to more acceptable middle grounds that have withstood the test of time. We may also do well to remember that India was never one continuous homogeneous unitary state. Much of the subcontinent was periodically unified under ruthless centralised commands, but put together, these pan-Indian empires account for less than five centuries of, say, the three millennia and more that 'India' was recognised. Even then, neither were all regions covered nor was any absolute uniformity imposed. Regional cultures and priorities flourished throughout history and India never foisted one system over a vast land, unlike what the Russian empire did through its mandatory 'Russification' policy. From the 3rd century BC, China has carried out a merciless 'Sinoisation' of all ethnic groups, with fire and sword. Unlike America, where WASP (white, Anglo-Saxon Protestant) culture is drilled into everyone else, India never attempted homogenisation, though some narrow-minded extremists nurse fond hopes of linguistic homogeneity.

Indian history reveals that widely diverse linguistic, ethnic and religious groups came together as one solid nation mainly because they desired to be together and found much in common to be proud of. In such circumstances, it would be unwise for any regime to treat every emblem of cultural autonomy to be heretical or every protest as treason. Such outbursts, even if they are intemperate, indicate that the system's wiring is overheated and a fuse has blown off. No regime can rule through accusations, condemnation, surveillance and domination. Dialogue and discussions are imperative so that course corrections can be made, even on farm laws that were rushed through Parliament without adequate debate. After all, India has always stood for accord, not discord.

WHY INDIA'S ECONOMIC RECOVERY IS WELL ON COURSE

KARAN BHASIN

New Delhi-based economist

There has been a growing discussion on the state of the economy ever since the government released the second quarter GDP estimates that showed the Indian economy to have contracted by 7.5% in this period. This was the second consecutive quarter where it witnessed an economic contraction even though the extent was lower compared to the 23.9% drop in the first quarter of this year.

There are many questions that remain unanswered with regards to the state of the economy, the reasons for the contraction and where we should go from here. It is important that we recognise that the economy was subject to a slowdown since the second quarter of 2018 that was an outcome of the collapse of IL&FS, creating problems in the NBFCs space. However, we must also recognise that the economy had started showing early signs of recovery in the last quarter of the financial year. Fast forward to the present fiscal year and we started with 60% of our economy shut due to a national lockdown with the intention of preventing the spread of Covid. Many forget that even before the national lockdown was invoked, several states had announced lockdowns of their own. The national lockdown simply ensured parity of policy as the Centre prepared a comprehensive strategy to deal with the pandemic.

The contraction in the first quarter of the financial year was an outcome of the pandemic and many feared massive bankruptcies at that time. Luckily, that has not happened and a major reason for it was the extent of policy support in the form of deferred tax payments, macro-prudential regulations and support extended through the banking sector. Fast forward to the second quarter results and we have the contraction at −7.5% even as the expectation was between −9% and −11%. More importantly, government expenditure in this quarter was lower compared to last year, yet the level of contraction was contained. This suggests that India's economic recovery is largely based on the private sector and the rural sector, which managed to grow at 3.4% in Q2.

Many were also surprised to see the second quarter manufacturing activity at 0.6%—that is, it grew modestly even while many expected it to contract. This did not come as a surprise as in a joint paper (Growth Implications of Pandemic: Indian Economy), Dr Arvind Virmani and I had highlighted how every sector will witness a different kind of economic recovery. We broadly classified the pandemic's impact into three parts: the lockdown phase where the economy contracts, the normalisation phase where the economy reverts gradually to the 2019 levels and the recovery phase when we start growing towards our potential rate of growth. The second quarter results have reaffirmed our assessment as the economy was indeed in the normalisation phase during this period.

The CMIE unemployment rate has fallen significantly. The GST collection has crossed the magic `1 lakh crore figure again in November. ... The decision to use the crisis to undertake economic reforms and resist the temptation to deteriorate the macro-fundamentals will ensure not just a swift bounce-back but also a sustainable high growth path

The question in the mind of many now is about where the economy is headed, more so as there is a disagreement with regards to the potential growth trajectory for India. While some see the economy to be stuck in its low growth path, I, on the other hand, believe that the recovery process is well on track. The second half of the financial year will witness a positive economic growth while the contraction will be well contained at under 7%, paving the way for near-double-digit growth in the next financial year. There are several reasons to believe that growth recovery is on track and the most obvious indicator is the CMIE unemployment rate, which has fallen significantly—one has to take a closer look at the labour force participation rate (LFPR) but broadly, as the lockdown was lifted, economic activity picked up and people started hiring or re-hiring, even if at slightly lower wages. Wages too will normalise as economic activity does and thus, the permanent loss of income may not be as much as what was feared during the initial months of the pandemic. The other major datapoint worth noting is the GST collection, which has crossed the magic ₹1 lakh crore figure in November, the second time since April, pointing at tax collections normalising.

The question is about future growth and what justifies a high-growth trajectory going forward. The first reason is negative real rates and an accommodative monetary policy. While low real rates may not be a sufficient condition for growth, they certainly help. The second is factor market reforms taken by various states that allow for greater factor productivity. Greater productivity implies higher output with the same number of factors of production employed and thus higher growth. The reforms undertaken combined with the corporate tax cut announced last year will collectively lead to and amplify the third reason, which is companies setting up shop in India because of the China+1 strategy—the pandemic has accelerated the process and we will certainly feel its impact on growth from the next financial year onwards.

There are several things that the country has done right with regards to the economic policy in response to the pandemic. The most obvious of them is the decision to use the crisis to undertake economic reforms and at the same time resist the temptation to deteriorate the macro-fundamentals in the medium or long run just for short-term gains. As a consequence, while India is likely to witness a swift bounce-back, it is also likely to achieve the successful transition to a sustained high growth path.

Many celebrities and opposition parties have supported the farmers. But the Centre had to take necessary action over the reforms sooner than later.

Oppn's crocodile tears

The Congress earlier wanted to implement similar farm reforms. It said it would repeal the APMC Act in its manifesto. They are all now shedding crocodile tears and want to see anarchy in this country.

The Centre is playing with fire. Whatever be the reasonableness or otherwise of the demands of the agitating farmers, the government is taking the adamant stand of not going back on the new farm laws, which is not good for an elected government. I hope better sense prevails.

CPI (M) leader Sitaram Yechury said the Left had made a conscious decision to stay away from protest sites and they don't want to politicize the protests.

MANY questioned the names of people invited for negotiations with Shah as Joginder Singh Ugrahan, head of the Bharatiya Kisan Union (Ugrahan) was not part of the delegation. His is one of the most popular and aggressive farmer unions in Punjab having the largest membership base.

Many others said they had no idea who prepared the short list for the meeting. "The invite came only to farmer leaders from Punjab but they decided to co-opt senior leaders of other unions," said a leader. It was then that Shiv Kumar Sharma Kakaji of the Rashtriya Kisan Mahasangh, Hannan Mollah of All India Kisan Sabha, Rakesh Tikait of BKU and Haryana BKU president Gurnam Singh Chaduni were added to the list, he revealed.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Bharat Bandh called by farmers' unions crippled highways and major roads especially in Punjab and Haryana while shops and commercial establishments remained affected in the two states and at many places across the country.

Punjab Civil Secretariat Staff Association president Sukhchain Khaira said more than 50,000 state employees took mass casual leave in support of farmers. Members of Punjabi University teaching faculty and students held protests in solidarity with the farmers.

Haryana and Punjab farmers parked tractor trolleys to block several highways leading to Delhi. They also blocked railway tracks at many places.

On the call of the Joint Association of Colleges, all 1,650 unaided colleges remained closed in Punjab. Dr Anshu Kataria, co-chairman, JAC and president of PUCA, said online classes did not take place in these colleges.

In Maharashtra, public transport in Mumbai and other parts remained largely unaffected, while APMC markets downed shutters on Tuesday. Suburban services as well as outstation trains remained unaffected.

Many BKU members were detained in UP's Agra after they tried to block roads. They clashed with police at Lucknow-Agra Expressway. SP workers stopped the Bundelkhand Express at Praygaraj. A Gwalior-bound train from Maduadih in Varanasi was also stopped by SP workers. The Himgiri and Assam Awadh Express carried only a few passengers.

Similarly, passengers were stranded in Patna for hours as buses were off the road following road blockades. The Hajipur bridge linking north Bihar with Patna was blocked for hours. The bandh had an impact in Muzaffarpur, Jehanabad, Ara, Lakhisarai, Vaishali, Patna, and Samastipur, from where most labourers migrate to other states. Train services at Lakhisarai and some other places were disrupted.

Arterial roads and railway tracks were blocked at several places in West Bengal. In Uttarakhand, The bandh affected life in Uttarakhand's Udham Singh Nagar district followed by Haridwar and in the plains of Nainital district.

REFORMS TOUGH DUE TO TOO MUCH DEMOCRACY: KANT

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

"TOO much democracy" in India was hampering "tough reforms", NITI Aayog CEO Amitabh Kant said at a virtual event organised by a magazine on Tuesday, though he later denied making such a statement.

"Tough reforms are very difficult in the Indian context. We have too much of democracy," said Kant during the webinar. It was not easy to compete against China without hard reforms, he added. His remarks came amid the farmers' agitation against the agri reform legislations recently enacted by Parliament.

To criticism of India turning protectionist, Kant said political will was required to carry out big reforms. "This government has demonstrated the political will to carry out hard reforms," he said, adding that the Centre had shown "tremendous courage and determination to carry out reforms in agriculture, labour, mining, coal and other areas."

The Niti Aayog CEO stressed that the next wave of reforms must come from states. "If 10-12 states will grow at higher rates, then there is no reason why Indian won't grow at higher rates. We have asked Union Territories to privatise discoms. Discoms must become far more competitive and provide cheap power."

To a question on farmers' protests, he said the agriculture sector needed reforms. "It is very important to understand that MSPs will be there, mandis will remain... farmers must have a choice to sell their products."

As his comment on "too much democracy" went viral, Kant clarified in a tweet, "This is definitely not what I said. I was speaking about MEIS scheme & resources being spread thin & need for creating global champions in manufacturing sector."

Regarding the production linked incentive scheme unveiled as part of the Atmanirbhar Abhiyan, Kant said: "Services alone cannot drive the economy. We need scale to get the services, manufacturing and agriculture to contribute to growth for the next three decades. We need global champions in the manufacturing sector."

"Nobody has the political will and courage to support five firms to become global champions; everyone will say let us support all", Kant said. "We need to create an ecosystem to enable private enterprises to thrive at the global platform."

Put under house arrest for supporting farmers, claims Kejriwal; police say no

SIDDHANTHA MISHRA @ New Delhi

DELHI CM Arvind Kejriwal alleged on Tuesday that he had been placed under 'house arrest' to prevent him for visiting the main protest site to show solidarity with the agitating farmers, a claim emphatically denied by Delhi Police.

Drama ensued as Kejriwal's cabinet minister and AAP MLAs and workers gathered outside his house in the morning and were stopped by the heavy police force present there, who had barricaded the main entrance. Agitated AAP workers started sloganeering and staged a sit-in protest. Deputy CM Manish Sisodia led the charge against the police, accusing them of converting the CM's residence into a prison.

The police, however, claimed the road leading to Kejriwal's residence was barricaded to avoid any clash between AAP leaders and the BJP workers and three mayors who had already been on a sit-in protest at the main gate since Monday night. "This claim of CM Delhi being put on house arrest is false and baseless." DCP, North Delhi, tweeted.

After hours of drama, the AAP leaders were allowed to meet the Delhi chief minister.

Addressed his party workers, Kejriwal said the Centre tried its best to ensure he does not step out. "The Bharat bandh was very successful. I also planned to visit the protest site to show my support as a common man, but they got to know about my plan and did not let me go. But I prayed for a successful protest from my home," the AAP convener said.

FIRST DISCUSS REFORMS IN PARL: HOODA

Former Haryana CM Bhupinder Singh Hooda said he agreed that some reforms were needed which should be first discussed in Parliament. He, however, said the current farm laws should be withdrawn. "The Centre should withdraw these farm laws and it is time for the government to act." At the Congress headquarters, Hooda added, "I agree some reforms are needed, but the Acts, which have been passed, have no reflection of reforms. And, if government wants reforms they should call the Parliament session and discuss exactly about the reforms."

FLYERS GET RELIEF FROM MANY AIRLINES

Airlines have waived-off cancellation, rescheduling charges for passengers, who could not report for their flights amid the traffic disruption on Tuesday. "For passengers who are unable to reach the Airport due to possible disturbance on 8th Dec'20, no-show charges will be waived and one free date change allowed for those with confirmed tickets for travel on 8th Dec'20 from any Indian Airport," Air India tweeted. Similarly, IndiGo also offered waivers to flyers in change or cancellation fee to and from all domestic airports in India.

DID NOT WRITE ON ENACTING LAWS: PAWAR

NCP supremo Sharad Pawar on Tuesday attacked the BJP for diverting the attention, saying as the Union Cabinet Minister he had only talked about bringing reforms in the APMC and not about the kind of new laws enacted by the Centre. "I had only talked that APMC (Agriculture Produce marketing committee) needs reform and the APMC Act should continue but with reforms," he said, responding to the BJP allegation about his double standards on APMC. "There is no doubt that I had written the letter, but they are just trying to divert the attention."

No religious persecution in India, US junks panel charge

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

WASHINGTON has dismissed the US Commission on International Religious Freedom (USCIRF) recommendation of designating India as a country of particular concern for violation of religious freedom.

The US state department, however, designated Pakistan and China as Countries of Particular Concern (CPCs) among 10 countries, US secretary of state Mike Pompeo said.

No country or entity should be allowed to persecute people with impunity because of their beliefs

Mike Pompeo, US Secretary of State

The USCIRF is an independent, bipartisan federal government entity, had told the US government in its 2020 annual report that religious freedom in India had experienced a 'drastic turn downward' with religious minorities under 'increasing assault' in 2019. The last it had recommended India to be listed as a country of concern was in 2004.

India had rejected the report's observations and termed the comments as 'biased' and 'tendentious', and said the allegations were 'not new'. New Delhi had also alleged that the "misrepresentations" had reached "new levels".

The state department also did not accept the USCIRF recommendation of designating Russia, Syria, and Vietnam as CPCs.

The NIA is likely to 16 accused, including the top leadership of Sikh extremists, most of them based abroad based in the UK, US and Canada, as per sources. ENS

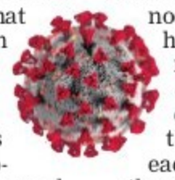
Nod for Covid shot likely under new trial rules

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

APPROVAL for restricted, emergency use of Covid-19 vaccines may be granted under the new clinical trial rules, top government officials said on Tuesday. "India's regulatory framework has a specific provision for grant of emergency use authorisation (EAU), although this phrase is not used," Union health secretary Rajesh Bhushan said at a press briefing, citing the New Drugs and Clinical Trial Rules, 2019.

The statement came a day after Hyderabad-based Bharat Biotech, following US pharma major Pfizer and Pune based Serum Institute of India, applied for restricted use permissions for their respective vaccines.

In response to a query on what rule will be followed by the drug regulator in the absence of a watertight EUA law for granting licence to vaccine makers, Bhushan said not all countries' regulatory frameworks or rules and Acts mention EUA. "So, the fact that this phrase is not used in the national regulatory framework of any country does not mean that specific country does not have an enabling provision to accord an approval which is early and which is distinct from a regular market approval," he said.



The government is ready to launch a massive production of Covid-19 vaccine once the scientists and researchers give a nod, Bhushan added. "We have made all the preparations and drawn an outline to ramp up production of vaccines and to make it available to each and every person in the shortest possible time."

The Drugs Controller General of India could grant a licence to some Covid-19 vaccine developers in the next few weeks, Bhushan said.

As per the details shared at the briefing, the current cold chain supply is capable of storing the first lot of 3 crore vaccines for healthcare and frontline workers. This will be augmented in the coming weeks. NITI Aayog member (health) V K Paul said the Covid situation in India has stabilised with active cases showing a "clear-cut declining trend".

Foreign heads will be taken to biotech companies, says MEA

NEW DELHI: The Ministry of External Affairs has organised a visit of foreign heads of missions in India to leading biotech companies in Hyderabad for Covid briefing on Wednesday. More than 60 head of missions will be taken to Bharat Biotech and Biological E in Hyderabad, according to sources. This is the first such visit and it will be followed by visits to facilities in other cities, they said. "We have been contributing significantly to global efforts against COVID 19 pandemic. There is a lot of interest in India's vaccine development efforts. India is the world's largest vaccine manufacturer. As PM said India's vaccine production and delivery capacity will be used to help all humanity in fighting this crisis," according to the MEA. Foreign secretary Harsh Shringla had recently held a briefing with foreign heads of mission on COVID-19 preparedness.

Barred from visiting people in central Kashmir; second instance since October

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

FOR the second time in last 10 days, Peoples Democratic Party (PDP) chief and former Jammu and Kashmir chief minister Mehbooba Mufti was placed under house arrest on Tuesday to prevent her from visiting Budgam district in central Kashmir to meet some nomad families that have been served eviction notices by the government.

Policemen deployed at Mehbooba's residence at Gupkar Road in Srinagar barred her from venturing out in the morning. "Illegal detention has become GOIs favourite go to method for muzzling any form of opposition. I've been detained once again because I wanted to visit Budgam where hundreds of families were evicted from their homes (sic)," she tweeted and released two videos to show that she had been placed under detention at her house.

"You have detained me and then Lt Governor and others say none was detained. What is this tamasha (drama)! Please open the door, I have to go outside. Please unlock the locks. Why you have illegally detained me? Please show me the papers under which law you have detained me," Mehbooba is heard telling the policemen in one of the videos.

In another tweet, the PDP chief stated, "GOI wants to continue inflicting oppression & zulm (atrocities) on the people of J&K without any questions asked."

Earlier on November 27, Mehbooba was placed under house detention and barred from visiting the residence of PDP leader Waheed Para, who has been arrested by the NIA in a terror linked case.

Mehbooba, who was among mainstream leaders arrested after scrapping of Article 370 and bifurcation of J&K state by the Centre on August 5 last year, was released in October this year after over 14 months' detention.

J&K BJP bats for Roshni Act, with riders

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

AFTER it emerged that a majority of beneficiaries of the controversial Roshni Act, which has been declared null and void by J&K High Court, were non-Muslims, the BJP has backed the government's review petition against the HC order and asserted that action should be taken against only rich and influential people.

The party has, however, backed the eviction of nomad Gujjars and Bakerwals, who are mostly Muslims. "The land should be taken back from them," said BJP spokesperson Arun Gupta.

The beneficiaries of Roshni Act, who have 'encroached' land, should be spared if they are poor and marginalised people, Gupta said. "They don't have any other place to live in. They are small farmers."

The J&K government has filed a review petition in the high Court seeking modifications to its October 9 verdict declaring the 2001 Roshni Act "null and void".

After the court verdict, the government had ordered cancellation of all land transfers under the Act. According to official figures, a total 6,04,602 kanals (75,575 acres) of land was transferred under the Roshni Act — 5,71,210 kanals (71,401 acres) in Jammu and 33,392 kanals (4,173 acres) in Kashmir. According to the list of beneficiaries released by the government, majority of those in Jammu were non-Muslims.

> BJP spokesperson Arun Gupta

Asked if the BJP backed the review petition because most beneficiaries were non-Muslims, Gupta said, "We are talking for people of marginalised society. They can belong to any religion. They should be supported and spared."

Asked if the party supported the eviction of Gujjars and Bakerwals from forest lands, he said, "Whosoever damages the forest area, action should be taken against them."

Chinese goods take big hit at def canteens

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

CHINA has been the biggest loser in the defence ministry 'Atmanirbhar' push at military canteens. More than half of the items in the long list of products that have been banned in the Canteen Stores Department (CSD) recently were being directly procured from China. The officials have been told not to purchase these items.

The order, issued on October 29, said, "In order to implement the Government of India's vision of Atmanirbhar Bharat and as per the directions of the MoD, no purchase order will be placed for the directly imported items with immediate effect."

Of the 422 items banned, 220 were being directly imported from China while 16 other items had partial production in the country.

The Chinese products which have been banned mostly include the electronic items like laptop, oven, coffee maker, sandwich toasters. Home décor items and crockery are also on the list.

The next country that will be hit hard is Vietnam with 42 items imported from there banned. Several products from the US, France, England, Germany and Italy along with Nepal, Bhutan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka in the neighborhood have also been banned.

The CSD was created to give easy access to quality products of daily use to the soldiers and veterans.

Not everyone has favoured the move to impose the ban. "If importing a product is cost-effective, it should be continued. After all, the same products are available in the market. So how does it fulfill the government's Atmanirbhar Bharat vision?" asked a military personnel.

Another soldier expressed fear that this was a step towards shutting the CSD services."Another 3-5 years and this CSD facility will be stopped and some other method will be adopted," he said.

ANOTHER AUTOPSY ON BJP CADRE'S BODY AS COPS DENY ROLE

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

A Jalpaiguri court ordered a second postmortem of a BJP supporter who died on Monday during the party's protest march after the West Bengal police claimed that shotgun injuries led to Ulen Roy's death.

The additional chief judicial magistrate also directed videography of the process. Citing the postmortem report conducted on Monday, the state police said in a statement that the police do not use shotguns. "It seems during the protest in Siliguri, armed persons were brought and they fired from firearms," said police.

Bengal BJP functionaries on Monday alleged Roy's death was due to police high handedness as the youth wing of the party marched towards the mini secretariat building in Siliguri.

The police rejected BJP's allegation blaming the men in uniform for the incident.

Work on Ram temple foundation to start after Dec 15

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

THE work on the foundation for proposed Ram temple on Ram Janmabhoomi premises is likely to take off after December 15. The decision to this effect came to the fore after the conclusion of a two-day meeting of the construction committee for Ram temple, presided over by chairman Nripendra Mishra in the temple town of Ayodhya on Tuesday.

As per the sources, experts from L&T, Tata Consultant Engineers, IIT-Madras and IIT-Roorkie, the architect of Akshardham temple, Brahma Bihari Swami, and one of the architects for the Ram Mandir, Ashish Sompura, were present in the meeting.

The sources claimed that the experts are likely to submit a soil test report and drawing report of temple foundation to the construction committee by December 15. According to temple trust treasurer Mahant Govind Dev Giri, based on the experts' report, a roadmap for temple construction would be drawn and the work on its structure would begin around January 15.

The sources, privy to the construction committee meeting, claimed that in the first phase, construction of an outer security wall of the 67-acre Ram Janmabhoomi premises would be taken up.

The sources said that the roadmap to develop the 65-acre land outside the periphery of the temple was also discussed at the meeting. He claimed that UP CM Yogi Adityanath wanted to develop the Ram Janmabhoomi premises as 'Vedic City'.

"Even we aspire to develop Janmabhoomi premises as the 'cultural capital of world," said Mahant Govind Dev Giri.

HC calls for workshop to sensitise prison staff

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mumbai

AMID reports of some jailed activists struggling to meet basic necessities in prisons, the Bombay High Court on Tuesday called for a "workshop" to sensitise prison officials. The court was hearing a plea related to the theft of spectacles of jailed activist Gautam Navlakha.

Navlakha is an accused in the Elgar Parishad-Maoist links case. His family had alleged that without his spectacles, the activist was almost blind but authorities at Taloja jail were not allowing him to get a new pair.

A division bench of Justices S S Shinde and M S Karnik said it had learnt about how Navlakha's spectacles were stolen and the prison authorities refused to accept the new spectacles sent by his family through courier. "Humanity is most important. Everything else will follow.

Navalakha

Stan Swamy

Today, we learnt about Navlakha's spectacles. This is the high time to conduct a workshop for even jail authorities," Justice Shinde said. "Can all these small items be denied? These are all humane considerations," the judge added.

Navlakha's family members on Monday claimed that his spectacles were stolen on November 27. They claimed that Navlakha is "almost blind" without the spectacles and yet, when they sent a pair of new spectacles to him by post earlier this month, the prison authorities refused to accept it and sent it back

"Presently Gautam Navlakha is unable to see things around him and consequently his blood pressure has shot up," read a statement, circulated on Monday evening by Navlakha's lawyers, signed by his wife.

Earlier, the lawyers of Stan Swamy (83) had moved the special NIA court seeking that their client be returned the sipper and straw allegedly seized by the NIA at the time of arrest. His hands shake while drinking water because of Parkinson's disease, they said.

Scheme to help women accused of witchcraft

MUKESH RANJAN @ Ranchi

IN a first, the Jharkhand government will soon launch a project to check harassment of women in the name of witchcraft and to ensure dignified life to them. Under the scheme all those women who faced torture in the name of witchcraft will be identified and provided with help to make them financially independent.

As of now, a total of 1,149 such women have been identified who will also be made aware of the legal remedies available to them. Officials in Rural Development Department said that under this project a security team will also be formed in each village to ensure that no woman is harassed or tortured in the name of witchcraft. The project is initially being launched in 2,668 villages on a pilot basis and will gradually be extended to all 32,000 villages across the state.

"Being a very sensitive issue, awareness among the society is one of the major focuses of this programme, along with counseling and ensuring a dignified living to the affected women, economically as well as socially," said Rural Development Secretary Aradhana Patnaik.

Baghel inaugurates cultural dance festival

Chief Minister Bhupesh Baghel inaugurated the 43rd Raut Nacha festival. He also participated in the traditional performance. Raut Nacha is a dance performed by Yadava/Yaduvanshis, a caste which considers themselves as descendants of Lord Krishna. As a symbol of worship, they perform the dance at the time of 'dev udhni ekadashi'. The dance is performed as a tribute to Krishna's dance or Raas Leela. Adorned with bright and colourful attire, dancers perform in groups at the beat of music and songs. Equipped with sticks and metal shields, and bells tied to their waist and ankles, the dancers enact the ancient battles of valiant warriors and the eternal triumph of good over evil.

Pink toilets to come up in Raipur city

The Raipur Municipal Corporation (RMC) has decided to construct pink toilets—a facility exclusively for women and children—in the city. Such restrooms, according to the RMC mayor Aijaz Dhebar, will be equipped with a baby feeding room, waiting room, incinerator facilities and sanitary napkin vending machine. The locations for setting up the pink toilets would be selected based on the footfall of women and girls in those areas. The users will also get an option to rate the facility based on cleanliness. It is believed that the initiative will give a fillip to the Swachh Bharat Mission. The municipal authorities have invited agencies to come up with their expression of interest (EOI).

Paddy procurement to begin this month

The much-awaited paddy procurement at the minimum support price (MSP), which continues to remain a major socio-political issue in Chhattisgarh, will begin this month across 2,305 centres. The use of sanitiser, mask and handwashing facilities in view of the Covid-19 pandemic has been made mandatory in each centre. This Kharif season, 21.29 lakh farmers have registered themselves compared to the previous year's 19.55 lakh, to sell their paddy on MSP. The procurement of around 95 lakh metric tonnes of paddy is estimated during the current marketing year. The area under paddy cultivation has increased from 19.36 lakh hectares to 27.59 lakh hectares, officials said. The paddy is procured by the government on an MSP of ₹2,500 per quintal.

Biden to tap ex-Iraq Commander as Pentagon's 1st Black chief

Retired 4-star general would make history as first African-American defence secretary; but as career military officer, Austin is likely to face Congress opposition

WASHINGTON

US President-elect Joe Biden will nominate retired four-star Army general Lloyd J. Austin to be secretary of defense, according to four people familiar with the decision. If confirmed by the Senate, Austin would be the first Black leader of the Pentagon.

Biden selected Austin over the longtime front-runner candidate, Michele Flournoy, a former senior Pentagon official and Biden supporter who would have been the first woman to serve as defense secretary. Biden also had considered Jeh Johnson, a former Pentagon general counsel and former secretary of homeland defense.

The impending nomination of Austin was confirmed by four people with knowledge of the pick who spoke to The Associated Press on the condition of anonymity because the selection hadn't been formally announced. Biden offered and Austin accepted the post on Sunday, according to a person familiar with the process.

As a career military officer, the 67-year-old Austin is likely to face opposition from some in Congress and in the defense establishment who believe in drawing a clear line between civilian and military leadership of the Pentagon. Although many previous defense secretaries have served briefly in the military, only two — George C. Marshall and James Mattis — have been career officers. Marshall also served as secretary of state.

Like Mattis, Austin would need to obtain a congressional waiver to serve as defense secretary. Congress intended civilian control of the military when it created the position of secretary of defense in 1947 and prohibited a recently retired military officer from holding the position.

One of the people who confirmed the pick said Austin's selection was about choosing the best possible person but acknowledged that pressure had built to name a candidate of color and that Austin's stock had risen in recent days.

Austin is a 1975 graduate of the US Military Academy at West Point and served 41 years in uniform. Biden has known Austin at least since the general's years leading US and coalition troops in Iraq while Biden was vice president. Austin was commander in Baghdad of the Multinational Corps-Iraq in 2008 when Barack Obama was elected president, and he returned to lead US troops from 2010 through 2011.

Among Austin's wide range of military assignments, in 2009-2010 he ran the joint staff during a portion of Navy Adm. Mike Mullen's term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Mullen had high praise for Austin.

"Should President-elect Biden tap him for the job, Lloyd will make a superb secretary of defense," Mullen said in a statement late Monday night. "He knows firsthand the complex missions our men and women in uniform conduct around the world. He puts a premium on alliances and partnerships. He respects the need for robust and healthy civil-military relations. And he leads inclusively, calmly and confidently." AP

Another judge blocks Trump's TikTok ban

WASHINGTON

A federal judge has blocked President Donald Trump's attempts to ban TikTok, the latest legal defeat for the administration as it tries to wrest the popular app from its Chinese owners.

The Trump administration had tried to ban the short-form video app from smartphone app stores in the U.S. and cut it off from vital technical services. TikTok sued, arguing such actions would violate free speech and due process rights.

Judge Carl Nichols of the U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C., said in a ruling Monday that the Commerce Department "likely overstepped" its use of presidential emergency powers "and acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner by failing to consider obvious alternatives." Nichols is the second federal judge to fully block the Trump administration's economic sanctions. AP

New MSNBC head will be 1st Black woman to run a US cable network

NEW YORK

PHIL Griffin is stepping down as the longtime president of MSNBC, to be replaced early next year by rising NBC News executive Rashida Jones.

Griffin, 64, has worked at NBC News for 35 years and has been president of MSNBC since 2008. With a primetime lineup led by Rachel Maddow, it is the established favorite of those wanting news from a liberal perspective.

Jones, who has been with NBC News for the past seven years, is currently chief of breaking news and major events at the network. She just led the network's coverage of the 2020 presidential election and the team preparing Kristen Welker as moderator of the third presidential debate.

Rashida Jones | AP

She's the first Black executive to lead one of the major cable networks. Cesar Conde, the new chairman of the NBC Universal News Group, has made diversity one of his top priorities.

"She leads with a laser-like focus and grace under pressure," Conde said.

Jones takes over on Feb 1. Her immediate challenge will be leading the network into coverage of the Biden administration; many in the news industry have feared that the exit of Donald Trump means the time of high ratings may be coming to an end. Griffin is leaving the network, and it's not immediately clear what he'll be doing next. AP

Trump seeks Pennsylvania House Speaker's help in overturning poll

President Donald Trump is continuing his futile appeal to state lawmakers to subvert the votes of their constituents. The president has reached out twice to Pennsylvania House Speaker Bryan Cutler, a Republican, to see what might be possible for Trump to do about the state's presidential vote. Trump pressed for the state's legislature to replace the electors for Biden with those loyal to Trump.

Hindu-Americans urge community to support Democrats in Georgia

President-elect Joe Biden's Hindu-American and South Asian supporters are ramping up efforts to convince Georgia's rapidly-growing Hindu population to support Democratic candidates in the January 5 Senate runoffs. Hindu-Americans' population in Georgia has grown much in recent years, with about 100,000 living in the state, including naturalised citizens originally from India, Bhutan and elsewhere.

Brexit trade deal still in doubt, but UK, EU agree on N Ireland

LONDON

BRITAIN and the European Union warned Tuesday that the chance of a post-Brexit trade deal by a year-end deadline is slipping away, with just over three weeks until an economic rupture that will cause upheaval for businesses on both sides of the English Channel.

With negotiators deadlocked on key issues, officials downplayed the chances of a breakthrough when Prime Minister Boris Johnson heads to Brussels for face-to-face talks with European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen in the next few days.

There was progress on another thorny issue as the two sides announced they had reached agreement on how trade will work with Northern Ireland, the only part of the U.K. that shares a land border with the EU. Britain said as a result it would scrap plans to breach its legally binding divorce agreement with the bloc — a proposal that had infuriated the EU and helped sour the talks. But on the bigger issue of a trade deal, Johnson said "the situation at the moment is very tricky."

"But hope springs eternal. I will do my best to sort it out if we can," he said.

German European Affairs Minister Michael Roth said "political will in London" was needed to secure a deal.

"Our future relationship is based on trust and confidence. It's precisely this confidence that is at stake in our negotiations right now," said Roth, whose country currently holds the EU's rotating presidency.

Johnson and von der Leyen, head of the EU's executive arm, spoke by phone Monday for the second time in 48 hours but failed to break the trade talks impasse. They said afterwards that "significant differences" remained on three key issues — fishing rights, fair-competition rules and the governance of future disputes.

The two leaders said they planned to discuss the remaining differences face to face "in Brussels in the coming days."

No date was given for the meeting. The leaders of EU nations are holding a summit in Brussels starting Thursday and are not keen for it to be overshadowed by Brexit. AP

$300mn Chinese factory near Hambantota port

Sri Lanka announced Tuesday the first large-scale Chinese investment in manufacturing in the country, a $300-million tyre factory near a strategic deep-sea port. The factory will be adjacent to the Hambantota port, which was leased to a Chinese company in 2017 after Sri Lanka failed to service the $1.4-billion debt from Beijing used to build it. Sri Lanka's cabinet approved the setting up of the tyre plant under legislation that allows generous tax concessions, Media Minister Keheliya Rambukwella said. He said Shandong Haohua Tire Co Limited will export at least 80 percent of production, with the option of selling the rest on the local market. Mahinda Rajapaksa is banking on a huge Chinese real-estate development in Colombo to attract more investment.

More protest leaders charged with royal defamation

More than a dozen leaders of Thailand's pro-democracy protest movement were charged Tuesday under the kingdom's tough royal defamation law for headlining demonstrations demanding reforms to the monarchy. Thailand has strict lese majeste laws, enshrined in Sec 112 of the penal code, shielding the king from criticism. Voicing defiance as they left the police station, those charged wore T-shirts emblazoned with "112" and a strike through it.

Pakistan of particular concern in violating religious freedom: US

The US has designated Pakistan and China among eight other countries that are of particular concern for violation of religious freedom, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo has said. Pakistan and China along with Myanmar, Eritrea, Iran, Nigeria, North Korea, Saudi Arabia, Tajikistan and Turkmenistan were placed in the list for engaging in or tolerating "systematic, ongoing, egregious violations of religious freedom", Pompeo said in a statement. The Secretary of State added that the US did not renew the prior 'Entity of Particular Concern' designations for al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula and ISIS-Khorasan due to the total loss of territory formerly controlled by these terrorist organisations.

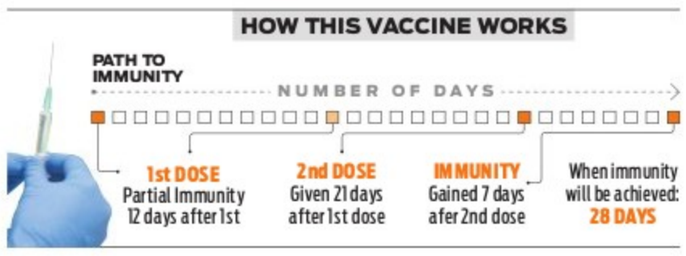
Maggie gets world's 'best early birthday present'

LONDON

A retired British shop clerk received the first shot in the country's COVID-19 vaccination program Tuesday, the start of an unprecedented global immunisation effort intended to offer a route out of a pandemic that has killed 1.5 million.

Margaret Keenan, who turns 91 next week, got the shot at 6:31 am (BST).

She was first in line at University Hospital Coventry, one of several hospitals around the country that are handling the initial phase of the United Kingdom's program. As luck would have it, the second injection went to a man named William Shakespeare, an 81-year-old who hails from Warwickshire, the county where the bard was born.



"I feel so privileged to be the first person vaccinated against Covid-19," said Keenan, who wore a surgical mask and a blue Merry Christmas T-shirt decorated with a cartoon penguin wearing a Santa hat. "It's the best early birthday present I could wish for because it means I can finally look forward to spending time with my family and friends in the New Year after being on my own for most of the year."

The UK is the first Western country to start a mass vaccination program after British regulators last week authorized the use of a COVID-19 shot developed by American drugmaker Pfizer and Germany's BioNTech. US and European Union regulators may approve the vaccine in the coming days or weeks. British authorities warned that the vaccination campaign would take many months, meaning lockdowns will continue. AP

Probe finds lapses ahead of Christchurch attack

WELLINGTON

THERE were no clear signs that an attack last year on two New Zealand mosques was imminent, but police should have done a better job vetting the lone gunman when he applied for a gun license, and intelligence agencies should have focused more on threats such as white supremacism, according to a new report.

Among 44 recommendations, the report released Tuesday says the government should establish a new national intelligence agency.

The report details how the attacker, white supremacist Brenton Tarrant, was able to live a solitary, almost ghost-like existence by relying on an inheritance that was fast dwindling when he killed 51 Muslim worshippers in Christchurch.

The Royal Commission of Inquiry report runs nearly 800 pages. It says that New Zealand's intelligence agencies were far too focused on the threat posed by Islamic extremism at the expense of other threats including white supremacism.

It found that despite the shortcomings of various agencies, Tarrant hadn't told anybody about his plans or left any clues — until he emailed out his manifesto just eight minutes before he began shooting, which came too late for agencies to respond. AP

Indian-origin 'hero' also receives Pfizer jab in UK

LONDON

An 87-year-old man and his 83-year-old wife from the north east of England on Tuesday became the first Indian-origin couple in the world to get a vaccine against COVID-19, after they got injected with their first of two doses of the Pfizer/BioNTech jab at a hospital in Newcastle.

Dr Hari Shukla, a race relations campaigner based in Tyne and Wear, had been contacted by the National Health Service (NHS) based on the criteria set for the world's first vaccine to receive regulatory approvals in the UK last week.

His wife, Ranjan, then volunteered for the jab as she also falls within the first phase of people aged 80 and over, care home workers as well as NHS workers at high risk eligible to receive the "life-saving jab".

"I'm so pleased we are hopefully coming towards the end of this pandemic and I am delighted to be doing my bit by having the vaccine, I feel it is my duty to do so and do whatever I can to help," said Shukla, who was born in Kenya and whose father hailed from Mumbai. "Having been in contact with the NHS [National Health Service], I know how hard they all work and the greatest respect for them ' they have a heart of gold and I am grateful for everything they have done to keep us safe during the pandemic".

Ranjan (L) and Hari Shukla | NHS

Shukla, who has been honoured with an MBE, OBE and CBE for his work as the Director of the Tyne and Wear Race Equality Council over the years, was notified by the NHS based on the criteria set by the UK's Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation as part of a phased rollout plan based on those at the highest risk of death from the virus.

Britain's The Telegraph reported that the grandfather-of-nine has given most of his life to improving race relations. "His name is on a 'Local Hero' plaque along the quayside walk of fame in Newcastle," the newspaper said.

The Pfizer vaccine needs to be stored at -70^{C} before being thawed out and can only be moved four times within that cold chain before being used.

Uber scraps self-driving cars in huge Covid setback

SAN RAMON

UBER is selling off its autonomous vehicles development arm as the ride-hailing company slims down after its revenues were pummeled by the pandemic.

San Francisco-based Uber will lose a critical piece of its company after the pandemic cut into its finances by suppressing demand for shared rides. Its path to profitability has often been linked with its plans to deploy autonomous vehicles and reduce the high cost of paying drivers.

The company's efforts around self-driving technology was marred in March 2018 when one of its automated test vehicles hit and killed a woman, the first death involving the technology. The backup Uber driver involved in the crash was charged with negligent homicide for being distracted in the moments before fatally striking the woman in suburban Phoenix.

Self-driving vehicle technology company Aurora will acquire the employees and technology behind Uber's Advanced Technologies Group in an stock transaction, the companies said Monday.

Uber will also invest $400 million into Aurora, and Uber's CEO Dara Khosrowshahi will join Aurora's board of directors.

After the transaction, Aurora will be worth $10 billion and Uber will hold 26% stake in the company, Aurora CEO Chris Urmson said.

"There's no doubt they had a pretty rough couple of years a while back," Urmson said. "What's been impressive to me in meeting the team over the last little while is just how much the team has learned..."

Gaining customers' trust is a huge factor, said Dan Morgan, VP of Synovus Trust Company. "You have one or two bad accidents and people are like, 'I'm not getting into that thing.'" AP

Mobile tech to help vaccine drive, Jio hints at 5G next yr

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

PRIME Minister Narendra Modi on Tuesday observed that mobile technology will be a key aspect of India's progress and will help in the Covid-19 vaccination drive. The PM, speaking at the India Mobile Congress, also called for the timely rollout of 5G tech in the country — and if Mukesh Ambani is to be believed, Jio may well kick off 5G operations in the second half of 2021.

Modi, in his speech, noted that mobile technology has helped provide benefits worth billions of dollars to millions, and is responsible for billions of cashless transactions and contactless interfaces. "It is also with the help of mobile technology that we will embark on one of the world's largest covid-19 vaccination drives," he said. However, no other details were divulged. The PM also told gathered industry heavyweights such as Ambani and Bharti Airtel's Sunil Bharti Mittal that there was a "need to work together to ensure a timely roll-out of 5G to leapfrog into the future and empower millions of Indians".

In fact, 5G dominated the discourse at the conference with most industry representatives claiming that such services were just around the corner.

Ambani, for his part, hinted that Jio may well have some form of 5G operations up and running by the end of the next year. Speaking about the need for India to maintain its lead in digital connections, Ambani said "policy steps (were) needed to accelerate the early rollout of 5G, and to make it affordable and available everywhere". "I assure you that Jio will pioneer the 5G Revolution in India in the second half of 2021," he said, adding India also has the opportunity to become a world leader in electronics manufacturing too.

Airtel's Mittal however, had a slightly longer timeline for India to start reaping the benefits of 5G. "As the world settles down on the 5G space, pricing of the equipment comes down and, importantly, devices start getting available, I think India will be ready to receive the benefit of the investments that the globe would have made on 5G in two-three years' time," he pointed out.

Every village to have high-speed fiber optic data connectivity in three years. We need to work together to ensure a timely roll out of 5G to leapfrog into the future and empower millions

Blanket interest waiver 'unthinkable'

Centre tells SC that waiving interest on all loans would mean forgoing a whopping `6 lakh cr

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

HAVING waived off compound interest on loans up to ₹2 crore, the Centre on Tuesday told the Supreme Court that a blanket waiver of interest on debts incurred by all classes and categories of borrowers for the loan moratorium would mean forgoing an estimated over ₹6 lakh crore and it is "unthinkable" to do so. During hearing of a batch of petitions seeking interest waiver during the loan recast period, Solicitor General Tushar Mehta told a Bench led by Justice Ashok Bhushan that most petitioner associations have legacy issues which are not due to the COVID-19, but due to pre-COVID factors.

"It is unthinkable to waive interest. If waiver is granted, a loss of ₹6 lakh crore will be there and if banks were to bear this burden, it would wipe out a substantial and a major part of their net worth, rendering most of the banks unviable and raising a serious question mark over their survival," submitted Mehta. The fact that the banking sector is reeling under severe bad loan stress was one of the primary reasons why "waiver was not contemplated but only payment of installments was deferred". For every loan account, there are about 8.5 deposit accounts.

The Solicitor General further added that the healthcare sector requires huge expenditure and at this point in time it was necessary for the Centre to "rationalise any kind of financial relief". The government cannot do anything that will risk the economy going "haywire".

"Middle and lower middle class wanted an interest waiver and big corporate giants who have legacy issues. They had issues prior to Covid-19 and Covid might have just aggravated their issues," Mehta submitted, adding "if an industry defaulted earlier than Covid-19, benefit cannot be entertained." Highlighting the measures taken by the Finance Ministry and Reserve Bank of India, Mehta said the government has sanctioned ₹90,800 crore liquidity boost for power distribution companies to help them pay their outstanding dues to power producers. The realty sector was also given customised relief.

"We had a different treatment to big borrowers for the sake of the complicated nature of lending. Thus the Kamath committee was set up," Mehta submitted. The apex court is hearing Centre's response to pleas made by industries such as power and real estate for debt relief including waiver of interest for the six-month loan recast period. The hearing will continue on December 9.

RBI cancels license of Karad Sahakari Bank, 99% to get full deposit amounts

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Tuesday cancelled the license of Karad Janata Sahakari Bank and asked the Registrar of Cooperative Societies, Maharashtra to wind it up as it "does not have adequate capital and earning prospects." According to the banking regulator, the bank with its present financial position would be unable to pay its present depositors in full and public interest would be adversely affected if the bank is allowed to carry on its banking business any further.

On liquidation, all depositors are entitled to repayment of their deposits up to a monetary ceiling of Rs 5 lakh only from the Deposit Insurance and Credit Guarantee Corporation (DICGC) as per usual terms and conditions.

"More than 99 per cent of the depositors of the bank will get full payment of their deposits from DICGC," RBI said in a statement. The bank was under All Inclusive Directions since November 07, 2017. The imposition of All-inclusive Directions on an Urban Co-operative Bank, restricts the bank from discharging its liabilities except as permitted by RBI.

"The Commissioner for Co-operation and Registrar of Co-operative Societies, Maharashtra has also been requested to issue an order for winding up the bank and appoint a liquidator for the bank," the RBI said in its order. With the cancellation of licence and commencement of liquidation proceedings, the process of paying the depositors of The Karad Janata Sahakari Bank will be set in motion.

The Reserve Bank has been cracking down on Urban cooperative banks ever since the fraud hit multi-state PMC bank came under its radar. While a rescue operation for PMC bank was mounted by the banking regulator, it has been shutting smaller unviable banks or taking regulatory actions ever since. Earlier in April this year, another Maharashtra-based cooperative bank — CKP Co-operative Bank — was also shut down as its financial position was "highly adverse and unsustainable," and in the absence of any concrete revival plan.

STAKE SALE

Govt speeds up divestment, invites bids for Pawan Hans

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Centre on Tuesday launched its fourth attempt to fully privatise state-owned helicopter company, Pawan Hans India Limited as it sought Expression of Interest (EoI) for selling its entire stake in the Central Public Sector Undertaking (CPSU) under the ministry of Civil Aviation.

"The government has 'in-principle' decided to disinvest its entire equity shareholding in the company by way of strategic disinvestment to investor(s) along with transfer of management control," the Preliminary Information Memorandum (PIM) said. This will be the second attempt after its similar offer in 2018 and 2019 failed to get any suitors. The EoI has been invited by the Department of Investment & Public Asset Management which will conduct the transaction with the help of SBI Capital Markets Limited (SBICAP) -- the firm that has been appointed as an advisor to manage the strategic disinvestment of the company. Interested parties have been given time till January 19 to submit bids and the shortlisted bidder will be intimated by February 17. As of now, PHL has 42 helicopters in its fleet. For FY20, the firm posted loss of ₹28 crore.

For now, Rohini Heliport will not be a part of this transaction, and will be demerged from Pawan Hans into Rohini Heliport Ltd. "Proposal to provide the successful bidder with right to use over Rohini Heliport (currently being used by PHL) for a period of 10 years, is under consideration. If approved, such right to use shall be available from the date of consummation of the proposed transaction," the PIM said. Currently the government owns 51 per cent stake and ONGC owns 49 per cent stake in the company. The successful bidder, as identified by the government, will also have the option to buy the entire ONGC stake of 49 per cent in PHL on similar price and term.

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

CONTINUING the spree, the equity-oriented mutual funds witnessed a massive outflow of ₹12,917 crore in November. This is the fifth straight month of withdrawal as investors booked profit amid higher market valuations. Despite the outflow, the Assets Under Management (AUM) of the industry reached a record ₹30 lakh crore at the end of November from ₹28.23 lakh crore in October, according to the data released by the Association of Mutual Funds in India (Amfi).

"We still believe that there is a significant amount of money that can come back to the market in the event of any correction. The medium to long term potential of the equity markets remain strong," G Pradeepkumar, CEO of Union AMC, said.

"Accommodative credit policy stance, continuous global liquidity flows, coupled with improved economic sentiment driven by healthier corporate earnings and positive GDP growth forecast has led to Indian mutual fund industry AUMs crossing historic highs and touching highest ever ₹30 lakh crore landmark," saod N S Venkatesh, Chief Executive of Amfi. On the other hand, investors put in ₹44,984 crore in debt Mutual Funds (MFs) last month as compared to ₹1.1 lakh crore in October. Overall, the MF industry witnessed a net inflow of ₹27,914 crore across all segments during the period under review as against an inflow of ₹98,576 crore in October. All the equity schemes had witnessed outflows last month.

Retail vehicle sales dip 19% in Nov led by two-wheelers: FADA

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

TOTAL vehicle registration, an indication of retail auto sales, fell 19 per cent in November to 18.28 lakh units as against 22.65 lakh units in the same month last year. The fall was led by subdued demand for two-wheelers as registration in this segment fell by over 21 per cent y-o-y to 14.13 lakh units, showed data released by the Federation of Automobile Dealers Associations (FADA).

In November, tractors and passenger vehicle (PV) retail sales grew by 8.47 per cent (49,313 units) and 4.17 per cent (2,91,001) year-on-year, respectively. Commercial vehicle and three-wheeler sales declined by 31.22 per cent (50,113) and 65 per cent (24,185) year-on-year.

However, month-on-month, vehicle registration grew by over 29 per cent in November as demand across categories remained high during the Dhanteras-Diwali period than the Navratri period. FADA said year-end discounts will play a major role in keeping momentum alive in December.

"With the festive season now over, heavy rains in certain parts of the country leading to crop damage and pent-up demand almost negligible, sales revival now solely depends on exciting year end schemes. If the supply chain issues in the PV segment are controlled, we may see continued growth in December," FADA said in a statement.

Commenting on the figures, Care Ratings said, "Comparison on a YoY basis shows that the retail sales of automobiles are at nearly 80 per cent of last year's levels, which reflects an impressive recovery of the sector in a pandemic year." However, reaching pre-covid levels of sales seems improbable in FY21, as consumer demand for automobiles is expected to stagnate in Q4-FY21. The festive season has nearly ended and hence, near term demand for automobiles will depend on how quickly the economy progresses and lifts consumer incomes, it added.

Tax regime, spectrum rates remain challenges for telcos: Vodafone Idea

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

HAVING taken the largest hit from AGR saga, Vodafone Idea's chief executive officer Ravinder Takkar said on Tuesday that tariffs, levies, and spectrum pricing remain major challenges to telecom service providers operating in India. However, he added that the government's support and current policies could help it script a success story.

Takkar said, "there are some challenges related to tariffs, taxes, levies, spectrum availability and pricing. The government understands these and has come out with progressive National Digital Communications Policy and are driving implementation of this policy. I remain optimistic that with government support, the industry and our company will script India's success story over the next 25 years". He also noted that there was immense potential for telcos in India to grow, since rural teledensity is "just 59 per cent versus 134 per cent urban teledensity and 450 million mobile subscribers are still not connected to broadband or don't own a smartphone". Building India-specific 5G use cases will also "positively impact" industry verticals such as healthcare, and education, Takkar added.

Fitch raises India's FY21 GDP forecast to -9.4%

New Delhi: Fitch Ratings on Tuesday raised India's GDP forecast to -9.4 per cent in the current fiscal year to March 2021 from a previously projected contraction of 10.5 per cent after the economy staged a sharper rebound in the second quarter. The projections compare to a GDP growth of 4.2 per cent in 2019-20 (April 2019 to March 2020) fiscal and 6.7 per cent annual expansion between 2015 and 2019. "The outlook is brighter owing to an expected rollout of various vaccines in 2021," Fitch noted.

India needs to invest $180 bn over the next decade to realise its EV ambition

BINITA JAISWAL @ Chennai

INDIA needs to make a cumulative investment of over $180 billion in electric vehicle production and charging infrastructure until 2030 to meet its electric vehicle (EV) ambition, finds a recent study by the CEEW Centre for Energy Finance (CEEW-CEF). According to the study, the country's electric vehicle market could be worth nearly $206 billion (around ₹14.24 lakh crore) in the coming decade, if India were to achieve its 2030 EV ambitions.

The cumulative EV sales in all vehicle segments could cross over 100 million units by FY30, which is 200 times its current market size. At the end of March 2020, the total number of registered EVs in India stood at only half a million.

Vaibhav Pratap Singh, senior analyst at CEEW-CEF, and lead author of the study, said, "Availability and affordability of capital for OEMs, battery manufacturers, charge point operators, and end consumers would be key to determining the pace, efficiency and cost of India's transition to electric vehicles." Consistent policy support would also be critical. The recent announcements by the government to set up EV kiosks across 69,000 petrol stations in the country and permit sales and registration of EVs without batteries can give a boost to the sector, the study noted. The CEEW-CEF study estimates that meeting India's EV ambition would also require an annual battery capacity of 158 Gigawatt hours (GWh) by FY30. This presents a massive opportunity for the domestic industry. Even if 50 per cent of the battery manufacturing capacity were indigenous, investments would amount to $6.1 billion (₹42,900 crore) by FY30.

Over 2.9 million public charging points by FY30

The CEEW-CEF study estimates India would also need a network of over 2.9 million public charging points by FY30, beyond the in-home charging points. This could create another massive opportunity for domestic sector requiring up to $2.9 billion (₹20,600 crore) investments until 2030.

Local rivals eat into market share of TikTok

BISMAH MALIK @ Bengaluru

NEARLY 40 per cent of the popular Chinese short video app Tik Tok's market has been captured by homegrown start-ups, finds a new survey by Redseer. According to the research and advisory firm, Bytedance's Tik Tok had captured 85-90 per cent of the short-form content market with Indians spending 165 billion minutes on an average per month on its platform. Post the Indian government banning Chinese apps, however, Tiktok's user base gradually shifted to homegrown apps riding on strong voices for a self-reliant technology in the country.

Tik Tok was estimated to have more than 120 million users in India. The study surveyed 8,000 consumers of which 77 per cent were aware of at least one of the Indian short-form video apps. In October this year, Redseer estimated the homegrown apps to have captured 67 per cent of the short-form content market with average time being 55 billion minutes spent monthly on these platforms. Dailyhunt's Josh has emerged as the leader in the space in overall experience with the highest index score of 56 out of 100. This was followed by InMobi's Roposo (40) and Times-owned MX Takatak (38). However, 60 per cent of the Tik-Tok's market is not captured due to factors including lack of quality content, lesser number of posts, value proposition of players and lesser tools for content creation. The report also suggests that the short form content market will grow 4X by FY25 with 580 million user base. The short-video/ content apps currently have 275 million users.

"Content consumption in India is growing faster than global growth. Users need free and bite-sized entertainment, which is not offered by OTT. Plus, a wide gap exists between free and paid OTT users implying need for low-cost entertainment and a stronger need-gap for short-form," said Ujjwal Chaudhry, Associate Partner at RedSeer Consulting.

Short-form market in India to grow manifold

With the number of internet users in India set to grow from 600 million to 970 million over the next five years, the short-form market is also estimated to grow by 4X on total time spent and reach to 400-450 billion minutes a month from 110 billion minutes. This would benefit players like Rosh, Roposo, MX and Takatak.

Important for batsmen to bowl a few overs: Raina

India batsman Suresh Raina felt that it is vital for batsman to bowl and that having multiple part-time options lends balance to every team, something India is missing these days. "It is important for a batsman to bowl and a bowler to bat. It is key for any captain that he chips in with 4-5 overs."

Boxing federation defers election, faces recognition crisis

INDRANEEL DAS @Chennai

WHAT'S an election without suspense, turnarounds and drama! Going by its four-year record of delivering the goods, the Boxing Federation of India (BFI) elections was supposed to be a routine one. However, in a twist, Mumbai BJP MLA Ashish Shelar threw his hat in the ring for the post of president with the backing of secretary Jay Kowli. He went to Delhi to file his nomination on Sunday and was set to take on popular president Ajay Singh on December 18 at Gurugram.

Late on Monday, hours after nominations were filed, the president sent a circular announcing the postponement of elections. Some were startled, while some felt it was the right decision considering that senior members like Meren Paul, Rajesh Bhandari, Lenny de Gama are not keeping well and will not be able to travel amid the Covid-19 situation. Altogether, there were requests from about 23 units to postpone the elections.

The Shelar camp was not amused with the development. In a statement, Shelar said he was surprised by the decision. "...This move shows that the current dispensation of the BFI is not ready to follow the principles of democratic process," he said.

This postponement will put the federation in a spot. Elections became necessary because the sports ministry had decided to grant recognition to 14 national federations subject to elections being held by December 31, 2020. In most federations, elections are either over or in the process of being held. Going by proceedings in BFI, it seems unlikely that elections can be conducted by December 31. This would mean flouting a ministry directive that was submitted to Delhi High Court. It needs to be seen how BFI comes out of this without suffering any damage. Though BFI said it has intimated the ministry about this, irrespective of that, their recognition would be under the scanner once the December 31 deadline is over.

If elections are not held soon, the entire process of issuing a notice (21 days before elections), nominations, new electoral roll to candidate nominations has to be done again. According to a member, a new electoral roll will be required because there might be changes. If insiders are to be believed, the returning officer will take a decision soon. Some senior members feel it would take two-three months for elections to take place, preferably in person.

Also, the tenure of office-bearers and the executive committee, which ended on September 25, needs to be extended again as the three-month extension given earlier will end soon. This can be decided in a special general meeting this month. Since the president and secretary are not on the same page, it needs to be seen how BFI functions.

For Ajay Singh's faction Hemanta Kalita of Assam would be contesting for the secretary's post and Digvijay Singh for treasurer's. During nominations, Shelar camp had listed two candidates for the secretary and treasurer's posts. Unless there are intense parleys, names are expected to remain the same until next elections.

Find of the season Natarajan says he doesn't believe in faking aggression

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

AS T Natarajan kept returning impressive figures during the IPL, selectors and the India team management knew they had a new talent at their disposal. A left-arm pacer was on the wishlist for long and it is what bowling coach Bharathi Arun had said would make this attack a complete one. They had a golden goose in Jasprit Bumrah to take care of death bowling, but workload was something they had to manage. Safe to say, India wanted Natarajan as badly as Natarajan wanted this opportunity.

India's Plan A was not to rush with Natarajan. Even though his yorkers were troubling reputed batsmen at IPL, he needed to be fine-tuned. This is why the initial plan was to take him to Australia as a reserve and make the transition smooth, as he doesn't have that many domestic matches under his belt. This is what Arun has previously done with other bowlers. Remember how Bumrah's transition from white ball to red ball happened?

The management thought spending time in the nets would help Natarajan widen his repertoire, for being one-dimensional could be costly at the international stage. However, destiny has this habit of smiling on Natarajan. Varun Chakravarthy's injury brought him in the squad and by the time the limited-over series ended on Tuesday, Natarajan was the toast of the nation. One could see the glee on captain Virat Kohli's face when he mentioned, "A left-armer is an asset and if he keeps bowling this way consistently, it will be great for us heading into the World Cup next year."

Though developments of the past few weeks have been overwhelming, Natarajan has looked composed. Asked about it on TV, he responded in a manner only he can. "Lots of people are asking.. but I have been the same since childhood. I can't fake aggression. If I take a wicket, I just smile and go. To get this opportunity in Australia is extraordinary. I don't have words."

With India choosing to rest Bumrah and Mohammed Shami for the T20s, they thought handing Natarajan an ODI debut would ease his nerves. By the time the T20s began, Natarajan was comfortable with players who he wasn't even dreaming of playing with two months back. Though language barriers exist, he has enough men in the dressing room to make him feel comfortable in his native Tamil. Story goes, he didn't understand a message from Kohli during the ODI, and someone from the dugout came to his rescue.

Hardik Pandya (L) gives his Man of the Series trophy to T Natarajan | TWITTER

In the T20 series which India won 2-1, Natarajan showed he isn't just about yorkers. He has added a surprise bouncer and brought the ball back into the right-hander.

"I know my strength and I backed myself. I trusted myself to land those yorkers. Before bowling, I ask the wicketkeeper and captain whether the pitch is slow or how it is behaving and adjust accordingly. I have full confidence in delivering yorkers and death bowling. I was just looking to execute them cleanly and make optimum use of the opportunity," he said.

The manner he has stepped up in the absence of Bumrah and Shami and delivered under pressure would give the team confidence to keep him in their plans.

"Special mention for Natarajan because he stood out and delivered under pressure. It is outstanding because he is playing his first few games at international level. He looks composed and is a humble and hardworking guy. He is sure of what he is doing," Kohli said.

Brief scores: Australia 186/5 in 20 ovs (Wade 80, Maxwell 54; Washington 2/34)
bt India 174/7 in 20 ovs (Kohli 85; Swepson 3/23).

Hit on head, Pucovski not sure for Test

AGENCIES @Sydney

POTENTIALLY in line for a Test debut against India, Australia batsman Will Pucovski suffered a concussion after being struck on the helmet by pacer Kartik Tyagi during the warm-up game against Indians and was ruled out of the second tour game starting December 11.

Considered a sure-shot selection for the opener, beginning December 17 in Adelaide, with David Warner ruled out owing to an injury, Pucovski was batting on 23 when he was hit on the helmet by a delivery from Tyagi in the 13th over of Australia A's second innings.

Wriddhiman Saha got himself some invaluable batting practice, but his other famed colleagues failed to bat long as their warm-up game against Australia A concluded in a draw.

Brief scores: Indians 247/9 dec & 189/9 dec (Saha 54 n.o, Steketee 5/37) drew with Australia A 306/9 dec & 52/1.

Mehra urges HC to act against NSFs

INDRANEEL DAS @Chennai

THERE seems to be no respite for the sports ministry and national sports federations (NSF). Just over a month after approaching Delhi High Court to quash the ministry's decision to grant recognition to 41 NSFs through five affidavits, lawyer Rahul Mehra has once again moved court. This time, too, he has appealed that recognition be withdrawn because of non-compliance with the National Sports Development Code.

Mehra pointed out in a petition that the ministry, while granting recognition to the 41 NSFs, had admitted that they were not compliant with the sports code and were given six months to amend their constitutions suitably. The petition requests the court to direct the ministry to not grant recognition to these NSFs unless their constitutions are fully in accordance with the sports code.

Seeking an urgent hearing, Mehra has urged the court to not just withdraw recognition of all errant NSFs but also stay the elections in 14 NSFs that have been directed to hold elections by December 31.

Wednesday of reckoning

Champions League enters a crucial final matchday of the group stage, with the fate of big teams like Real Madrid, Inter Milan and Atletico Madrid hanging in the balance...

Ajax players during a training session ahead of their must-win Champions League clash against Atalanta in Amsterdam on Tuesday | AFP

HANGING BY A THREAD

Real Madrid are used to breezing through the Champions League, rather than facing must-win situations match after match in the group stage. Zinedine Zidane's team needs a victory against Borussia Monchengladbach in Group B to ensure that they don't miss out on the knockout phase for the first time in CL history. With a draw, Real, placed third with seven points, can squeak through to the last 16 if Shakhtar Donetsk lose at Inter Milan.

INTER BANK ON LUKAKU

Inter Milan are counting on prolific striker Romelu Lukaku to power into the last 16 in a must-win clash against Shakhtar. The Belgian scored a double in the three-time winners' 3-2 win over Moenchengladbach last time to keep them in the competition. Bottom of Group B, Inter need to win at San Siro and hope that 'Gladbach and Real do not play out a draw.

ATLETICO FAVOURITES

With defending champion Bayern Munich through as Group A winners, the second spot is down to either Atletico Madrid or Salzburg who face each other in Austria. Diego Simeone's Atletico have only lost once in all competitions this season. A draw is enough to send them through, while Salzburg must win.

ATALANTA VS AJAX

Liverpool are through from Group D, leaving Atalanta and Ajax to decide who joins the English champions. Atalanta can advance with a victory or draw in Amsterdam. That Atalanta have won just one of their last six games in Serie A and the Champions League is something to be noted.

Real have never failed to get past the group stage in 25 previous campaigns.

Atalanta forwards Zapata, Luis Muriel and captain Papu Gomez — who have 15 goals between them this season — have gone 6 games without scoring.

Bengaluru, NorthEast share spoils

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

BENGALURU FC came up with an improved attacking performance against NorthEast United FC, but it did not prove to be enough with the game ending in a 2-2 draw at Fatorda Stadium on Tuesday. Their finishing could have been better in front of goal, but they did create chances in the final third from open play.

However, one needs to applaud NorthEast United, who came up with yet another impressive show to secure a point. With this result, both teams maintain their unbeaten record in the seventh edition of the ISL.

In fact, it was NorthEast, who started on the front foot. Rochharzela attempted a shot on goal and the ball deflected off Luis Machado before looping in in the third minute. That was the best possible start for the Highlanders, who were full of life. But, the Blues managed to equalise with Juanan finishing from close range after a long throw from Rahul Bheke in the 13th minute.

The contest further opened up after the equaliser with both teams in search of a lead. Bengaluru were dominant in the first half. In the second 45, both goalkeepers were kept busy as the game progressed. Bengaluru's Gurpreet Singh Sandhu made a fine save to deny Kwesi Appiah a goal in the 53rd minute. At the other end, Gurmeet denied Kristian Opseth his first goal of the season. However, Gurmeet could not stop Udanta Singh's strike in the 71st minute. The goal meant North East went all out and it paid dividends as they managed to draw level via Machado eight minutes later.

Pfizer vaccine receives a positive review from FDA

Published outcome of Oxford Univ's candidate shows it is 70% effective, but doubts linger on its protection in the 55+ age group

MEDICINE

WASHINGTON: Documents released by US regulators on Tuesday confirmed that Pfizer's vaccine was strongly protective against Covid-19 and appeared safe — offering the world's first detailed look at the evidence behind the shots.

On the same day, Oxford University and AstraZeneca became the first Covid-19 vaccine makers to publish final-stage clinical trial results in a scientific journal, clearing a key hurdle in the global race to develop safe and effective drugs for the new coronavirus.

The positive review for Pfizer's vaccine from the Food and Drug Administration sets the stage for a decision allowing the vaccine's initial use within days. FDA regulators posted their analysis online even as across the Atlantic, Britain began vaccinating its oldest citizens with the shots, which were co-developed with BioNTech.

But the US judges experimental vaccines in a unique way: On Thursday, the FDA will convene what's essentially a science court that will debate — in public and livestreamed — just how strong the data backing the shots really is. That public vetting is considered key to bolstering confidence in the shots ahead of what's expected to be the largest vaccination effort in American history.

A panel of independent scientists will pick apart the FDA's first-pass review before recommending whether the vaccine appears safe and effective enough for millions of Americans. The FDA typically follows the committee's advice and if it gives the green light, the first recipients would be health care workers and nursing home residents, according to plans laid out by each state.

Pfizer CEO Albert Bourla declined to predict how quickly FDA might issue a decision.

"They need to take as much time as they need to feel comfortable. It's very important for the trust of the vaccine from the people," he said at a news conference in Geneva.

We're looking at the best possible data...People worry, reasonably, how about six months later?

Dr. Paul Offit, Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and FDA adviser

New results on a possible Covid-19 vaccine from Oxford University and AstraZeneca suggest it is safe and about 70 per cent effective, but questions remain about how well it may help protect those over 55 — a key concern for a vaccine that health officials hope to rely on around the world because of its low cost, availability and ease of use.

Still, experts say the vaccine seems likely to be approved, despite some confusion in the results and lower levels of protection than what other vaccine candidates have shown.

"What we can see looks reasonable, but it's a bit more complicated than what we've seen so far," said Dr. Buddy Creech, a Vanderbilt University researcher helping to test two other vaccines. "If this had been the first report out, the field would have still been excited to have a vaccine."

The medical journal Lancet on Tuesday published partial results from tests of the vaccine in the UK, Brazil and South Africa — safety results on 23,745 participants and protection levels on 11,636.

They're hard to interpret because a mistake led some participants to get a half dose followed by a full one rather than two full doses as intended.

Researchers claim the vaccine protected against disease in 62 per cent of those given two full doses and in 90 per cent of those initially given the half dose. However, independent experts have said the second group was too small — 2,741 people — to judge the possible value of that approach and that more testing is needed.

The half-dose group also didn't include anyone over 55, and among others in the study, only about 20 per cent were in that age group.

It's unclear if the results will be enough to lead regulators in the UK and elsewhere to approve its use right away.

"We have no safety concerns about the vaccine," with no hospitalisations or severe disease among those who received it, and results from all study locations consistently showing benefit, said Oxford's Andrew Pollard. "The only way we get the pandemic behind us is if we get doses of vaccine out there," he said.

Everest 'grows' almost a metre taller

The highest point on Earth got a bit higher on Tuesday as China and Nepal finally agreed on a precise elevation for Mount Everest after decades of debate. We take a look

WHAT IS THE NEW HEIGHT?

8,848.86 M

The agreed height unveiled at a joint news conference in Kathmandu

This is 86 centimetres higher than the measurement previously recognised by Nepal

This is also more than four metres above China's official figure

WHY THE DISCREPANCY

This was owing to China measuring the rock base on the summit and not — as with the new reading — the covering of snow and ice on the peak

USE OF TRIGNOMETRY

IN 1856

British colonial geographers first determined Everest's height at 8,840 metres above sea level by employing trigonometry hundreds of kilometres away on the Indian plains

READJUSTMENT

MAY 29, 1953

Edmund Hillary and Tenzing Norgay Sherpa reached the summit of Everest

After the successful climb, an Indian survey readjusted the altitude to 8,848 meters

That measurement was widely accepted, with the number alluring to adventure seekers

NAT GEO HAS A DIFFERENT NUMBER

IN 1999

The US National Geographic Society concluded the world's highest point was higher at 8,850 metres

However, Nepal never officially recognised this new height, although it is widely quoted

AVERAGE

Dang Yamin, an expert at the National Bureau of Surveying and Mapping, told Chinese state broadcaster CCTV that the final result was an average value between the measurements by Nepal and China, in accordance with scientific rules

GEOPOLITICS AT PLAY

For China, the announcement appeared to be as much about politics as geography

China has drawn Nepal ever closer into its orbit with investments in its economy and the building of highways, dams, airports and other infrastructure in the impoverished nation

EVEREST'S OTHER NAMES

In Tibetan language, Mount Everest is known as Mount Qomolangma

In Nepal, the world's tallest peak is called Sagarmatha

WHY IS IT NAMED EVEREST?

Andrew Waugh, British Surveyor General of India, recommended the name of George Everest, his predecessor in the post in, 1865, which was accepted

NEW CALCULATIONS

Nepali experts and surveyors were involved in the exercise, some walking on foot with others using helicopters to reach data collection stations

Last spring, Nepali surveyors reached the summit of Everest with over 40 kg of equipment, including a Global Satellite Navigation System (GNSS) receiver

Nepal was due to release the results earlier this year, but then China became involved after a visit to Nepal in Oct 2019 by Chinese President Xi Jinping

CHINA'S NUMBERS VS NEPAL'S

China meanwhile conducted several surveys. In 2005, it came up with its measurement of 8,844.43 metres. This provoked a row with Nepal which was only resolved in 2010 when Kathmandu and Beijing agreed that their measurements referred to different things — one to the height of Everest's rock and the other to the height of its snowcap

EARTHQUAKE IMPACT

Nepal decided to conduct the survey — the first time it has done its own — after suggestions that tectonic plate movements including a major earthquake in 2015 may have affected the height

Google and FB will have to pay for news content in Australia

LEGISLATION

CANBERRA: Australia's government will reveal legislation in Parliament on Wednesday that would make Facebook and Google pay for journalism.

Treasurer Josh Frydenberg said on Tuesday that the legislation to create the News Media Bargaining Code will be scrutinised by a parliamentary committee following its introduction and before lawmakers vote on it next year.

"This is a huge reform," Frydenberg told reporters. "This is a world first. And the world is watching what happens here in Australia."

The legislation differs from draft proposals that were released in July after consultations with the social media platforms as well as Australian media organisations.

The government had initially planned to exclude state-owned media — Australian Broadcasting Corp. and the Special Broadcasting Service — from being compensated by the tech giants for their journalism.

Frydenberg said those broadcasters would be paid under the latest draft legislation like commercial media businesses.

Facebook has warned it might block Australian news content rather than pay for it. Google has said the proposed laws would result in "dramatically worse Google Search and YouTube," put free services at risk and could lead to users' data "being handed over to big news businesses."

The law would create an arbitrator to address the bargaining imbalance between the tech giants and news businesses. If a platform and a news outlet can't reach an agreement, an arbitrator would be appointed to make a binding decision. Both Spain and France have failed to make Facebook and Google pay for news through copyright law.

Mississippi River gets a 'C-' for low water quality in 2020 report

ENVIRONMENT

O'FALLON: A group developed to help improve management of the Mississippi River Watershed has issued it a disappointing report card, and says urgent action and billions of dollars are required to address flooding and water quality concerns in the US' largest rivers.

America's Watershed Initiative on Tuesday released its 2020 report for the Mississippi River and its more than 250 tributaries. The 2020 C- grade is only a slight improvement on the D+ grade the group issued for the watershed in its first report, in 2015.

The watershed, which encompasses two-fifths of the continental US and 31 states, remains threatened by increasingly frequent and extreme flooding as well as aging infrastructure and pollution, the report said.

Kimberly Lutz, the initiative's executive director, said the watershed faces "pressing challenges."

"As the US looks to recover and rebuild our economy amid the coronavirus pandemic, the health and resilience of this critical natural resource —through investments in infrastructure, research, education and flood and water management — must be part of the solution," Lutz said.

The report characterised water quality in the system as "very poor" due to increasing sediments and nutrients. It gave a D grade for water quality, flood control and risk reduction.

Other factors assessed include ecosystem health, the economy and recreation.

To protect the water system, the initiative called for $2 billion in annual funding through government and private sources to address issues such as river navigation, flood management and the ecosystem.

Lutz said the goal of the report card is to provide decision makers and others with information to develop a collaborative approach to managing the watershed.

The report card was developed jointly with the University of Maryland Center for Environmental Science and the initiative was founded in 2010.

HIJACKING DEVICES

Millions of internet-linked appliances vulnerable to hacking

CYBERATTACK

BOSTON: Researchers at a cybersecurity firm say they have identified vulnerabilities in software widely used by millions of connected devices — flaws that could be exploited by hackers to penetrate business and home computer networks and disrupt them.

There is no evidence of any intrusions that made use of these vulnerabilities. But their existence in data-communications software central to internet-connected devices prompted the US Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency to flag the issue in a bulletin.

Potentially affected devices from an estimated 150 manufacturers range from networked thermometers to "smart" plugs and printers to office routers and healthcare appliances to components of industrial control systems, the cybersecurity firm Forescout Technologies said in a report released on Tuesday. Most affected are consumer devices including remote-controlled temperature sensors and cameras, it said.

In the worst case, control systems that drive "critical services to society" such as water, power and automated building management could be crippled, said Awais Rashid, a computer scientist at Bristol University in Britain who reviewed the Forescout findings.

In its advisory, CISA recommended that users take defensive measures to minimise the risk of hacking. In particular, it suggested cutting off industrial control systems from the internet and isolated from corporate networks.

The discovery highlights the dangers that cybersecurity experts often find in internet-linked appliances designed without much attention to security. Sloppy programming by developers is the main issue in this case, Rashid said.

Fixing the problems, which could afflict millions of impacted devices, is particularly complicated because they reside in so-called open-source software, code freely distributed for use and further modification. In this case, the issue involves fundamental internet software that manages communication between internet devices via a technology called TCP/IP.

Fixing the vulnerabilities in impacted devices is particularly complicated because open-source software isn't owned by anyone, said Elisa Costante, Forescout's vice president of research. Such code is often maintained by volunteers. Some of the vulnerable TCP/IP code is two decades old; some of it is no longer supported, she added.

If unfixed, the vulnerabilities could leave corporate networks open to crippling denial-of-service attacks, ransomware delivery or malware that hijacks devices and enlists them in zombie botnets, the researchers said.

The upcoming edition of Bangalore Lit Festival will see authors like Alexander McCall Smith, Moni Mohsin and Jeffrey Archer joining in from their homes as city literati anchor the event at the podium

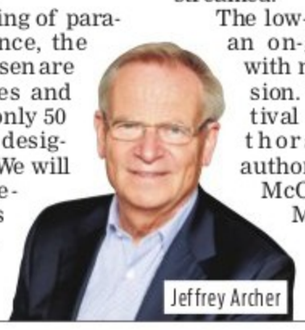
TURNING A NEW PAGE

EXPRESS FEATURES

IT'S going to feel as if the old times are back this weekend, when the ninth edition of Bangalore Literature Festival (BLF) kicks off. While event organisers in general have been treading a cautious path, steering towards an online medium, the BLF team is keeping the annual event going sans a break.

"Never before have we missed the open warmth of literature more. The festival this year, coming to you in person, is a small step towards reclaiming life as we knew it. The festival is exclusively for all those who are beginning to wilt under the new normal. The festival team only babbled about one thing: how to get the city slowly back on its cultural feet - is it at all possible? Since the festival is up in both offline and online viewership formats, it actually embraces all audiences everywhere," festival director Shinie Antony tells CE.

With safety being of paramount importance, the event venues chosen are ventilated spaces and will be filled to only 50 per cent of the designated capacity. "We will have breaks between sessions for sanitisation. Use of face masks is mandatory and will be strictly enforced," she says. The sessions will also be live-streamed.



Jeffrey Archer

The low-key affair will be an on-ground festival, with no only-online session. "It is our own festival with our own authors. Celebrated authors like Alexander McCall Smith, Moni Mohsin and Jeffrey Archer, who join us from their homes, will be anchored by Bengalureans at the festival podium," she says, adding that it was all about the timing. "The 'when' of this festival - someone had to break the silence. The walls around us are shifting. The city's slide into cultural silence in its intersections and the realisation that the world won't change to fit around us brought us back to our planning desk. Sessions on home and health, crime and satire are set to explore the new realities," adds Antony.

Never before have we missed the open warmth of literature more. The festival this year, coming to you in person, is a small step towards reclaiming life as we knew it

Shinie Antony, festival director

While the pandemic has been at the forefront this year, the literature fest doesn't dwell too much on it. "We did not feel the need to focus exclusively on the pandemic as it infiltrates all thoughts and conversations anyway. Organic references to the new regime will be a part of the dialogue. We do have a session called The Masked Intruder, which will look at health, both mental and physical, in the current aftermath," she says.

The event will be held on Dec. 12-13, at Bangalore International Centre, Domlur. To register and view schedule, log on to bangaloreliteraturefestival.org.

Music to the ears

EXPRESS FEATURES

WHEN the nation came to a standstill, so did the music industry. The arts, culture and entertainment industry has been significantly hit with the raging pandemic. Even as many artistes have been innovating and experimenting during this period, the lasting damage on the industry has taken a toll on many.

With the gradual reopening of venues, safety is still a primary concern. But days of large social gatherings are a thing of the past. Which is why CharSur Arts Foundation, a non-profit charitable trust created to support Carnatic music, is joining hands with In.Live, a US-based online live streaming platform, to host a Carnatic Music Festival. With the theme 'Shakti – the primordial force', the concert will attempt to recreate the buzz of a physical festival.

To be held between December 15 and 30, the concert will be available for live streaming from home. The session which will go on for two weeks will combine the colour and charm of traditional Carnatic music and will safely bring this experience to the people of India and the United States of America. The festival will begin on December 15 with two concerts scheduled for vodcasts per day – at 4 pm and 6.15 pm (IST).

The live-streamed festival will bring together 30 internationally-acclaimed artistes, like Sikkil C Gurucharan, Jayanti Kumaresh, Gayathri Venkataraghavan, Lalgudi GJR Krishnan, K Bharath Sundar, Kunnakudi Balamuralikrishna, Sriranjani Santhanagopalan, Vignesh Ishwar and R K Shriram Kumar. For details and tickets, check charsur.in.live.

This performance poetry act highlights societal pressures and basic rights of women

BETTER AND VERSE

EVERY year, Theatre for Change plans a different activity to commemorate the International Day for the Elimination of Violence against Women, which spans over 16 days of activism addressing women's issues. This year too, the group wanted to do the same but while focusing on what they call the 'basic fundamental rights of women' -- the freedom to make life choices without succumbing to societal pressure and not to be seen as sex objects. On Dec. 10, which marks Human Rights Day, the group will release a video that features four women actors staging a performance poetry that pays an ode to womanhood.

"We thought this is a need-of-the-hour conversation and one that any woman, no matter of what age she is, can relate to," says Sujatha Balakrishnan, founder of the group, which has in previous years planned activities along different themes like female genital mutilation, personal safety of women, etc. "This year, the pandemic has caused an increase in the cases of domestic violence. So we felt our performance might help spread an important message as well," adds Balakrishnan, who along with Vasanti Sundaram, Shatarupa Bhattacharyya and Amoolya Narayanan, will be acting in the performance.

Theatre for Change has collaborated with another group, Dramarsis, for this project. Navoneil Bhattacharyya, a poet and co-founder of the group, penned the two poems that the actors are performing. The final video stitches together both his poems – Not a Woman Thing and She Speaks – into one continuous performance. Balakrishnan says, "We don't have any vengeance against men, and believe in equality. There are good men too, and we thought it might be interesting to listen to the other side."

Navoneil says he had no two thoughts about the project when he was approached for it. A lot of what has been penned by him is something women are aware of but he hopes that men understand it too. "This is why I tried to distance myself from the poem and instead of just one theme, I wanted to touch upon various facets. But I also could not rely on just myself so I sought feedback from different women to see if the poems spoke of the truth as they saw it as well," he says.

He admits that the poems do also contain some "unparliamentary language" but there was a well-intended purpose behind this. "These are terms that are used as slurs against women. And I hoped that when the women perform this, they could strip these words of their power by reclaiming them," explains Navoneil, who was also motivated to take part in this in order to drive home some crucial messages. For women, he hopes, the piece might provide a sense of empowerment, while for men it could provide space for reflection, of past instances and future changes. "I also wanted people to see that this is not a women's issue. It's a society issue, and we are all equally responsible for it."

The video will be released on Theatre for Change's YouTube channel on Dec. 10.

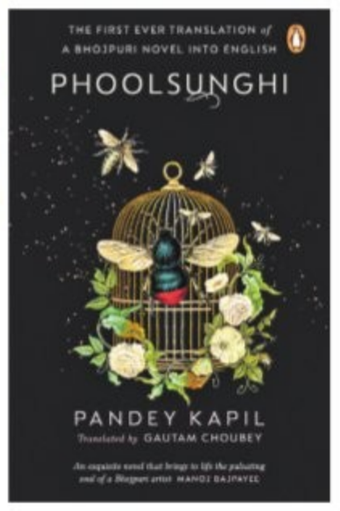
Bonding with Bhojpuri

There's more to Bhojpuri culture than its popular cinema. Gautam Choubey, who has translated Pandey Kapil's Phoolsunghi into English, tells CE about the book's relevance in today's world and more



MONIKA MONALISA

THROWING a spotlight on Bhojpuri literature, Pandey Kapil's Phoolsunghi (Penguin Random House, ₹399), is possibly the first Bhojpuri book translated into English. Academician Gautam Choubey, who translated the book, transports readers to a forgotten world filled with mujras and mehfils, court cases and counterfeit currency, and the crashing waves of the Saryu river. Excerpts from an interview:

Why did you choose this book by Pandey Kapil over his other books?

This book contests popular misconceptions and flawed discourses about the Bhojpuri world – notions which people from within the region are at times reluctant to confront and admit. At its core, it is not a culture that glorifies violence and sexual misdemeanours; it is humane, sophisticated with its own codes of honour and chivalry. The novel brings these aspects to the fore. For example, it celebrates the miraculous rise of a courtesan in a culture that is often considered doggedly patriarchal. Even though it was written during the days of Emergency and it depicts a colonial world in turmoil – that moves between Banaras to the west and Calcutta to the east -- it celebrates gestures of reconciliation and assimilation.

When were you introduced to Pandey Kapil's work?

I grew up in a Bhojpuri-speaking literary family: my maternal grandfather, Chandradhar Pandey, was a well-known Bhojpuri writer. I was somewhat familiar with figures like Mahendra Misir, Bhikhari Thakur, Rameshawar Singh Kashyap, and to some extent, even Pandey Kapil. However, it was only in late 2017, having completed my PhD from the English department at Delhi University that I turned to Bhojpuri. That too at the behest of a senior colleague. A year later, when I finally read Phoolsunghi, I was quite smitten by the story and moved by the sentiments it invokes. I came to realise the emotive force of feelings expressed in one's mother tongue. After this chance discovery, and based on my family's personal relationship with Bhojpuri literature, I felt duty-bound to share it with the world at large.

What does the title mean?

Phoolsunghi is a flowerpecker: a tiny bird that is at its chirpy best when hovering free around flowers, but withers away if put in a cage. It's a metaphor for Dhelabai, the courtesan from Muzaffarpur who is imprisoned in the Red Mansion by Haliwant Sahay, an ageing zamindar of Chhapra. The cage on the cover of the book represents the mansion, and the bees suggests characters drawn to the creature it entraps: the flowerpecker or Dhelabai, that is.

How relevant is the book in today's world?

Although set in a turbulent colonial world, and written during the discordant days of Emergency, the novel makes a compelling case for reconciliation and empathy -- values that we crave for in the divided world that we inhabit. It enacts sentiments we desire and also suggests ways to bring them to bear upon our world. And most important, it speaks of women empowerment: even though the story of Dhelabai begins with her abduction, the novel takes us to a point where she emerges as a powerful much-admired matriarch, that too in the household she was forcefully brought to.

Bhojpuri literature is less explored. What took so long to bring people's interest to these works?

A number of factors: The dominance of Hindi literature, which, at its considerate best, appropriates Bhojpuri, but generally ignores it. The rise of Bhojpuri films and cinema created a flawed impression about Bhojpuri and its culture. Besides, the lack of a literary movement with concerted objectives, and unsteady or half-hearted state support are the other reasons for the language remaining neglected.

Did you face any challenges while translating the book?

I grew up speaking Bhojpuri with my mother and until a few years ago, believed that I knew the language quite well. However, when I started reading its literature, I realised that Bhojpuri in print is different from the spoken form, as is perhaps the case with all other languages. To begin with, the visual impression of Bhojpuri words, although written in the script that I was all too familiar with, was a little disorienting; for me Devanagari and Hindi were interchangeable, and I could not fathom the script being mobilised by another language. Further, since there is no 'standardised' Bhojpuri, there are multiple registers within the language, causing words to have different meanings across different spaces and regions. This pushed me to connect with Bhojpuri scholars, writers and people in my village. In a sense, a larger community of Bhojpuri enthusiasts came together for this book.

'I first saw Sachin in a Wills Trophy match'

TURNING PAGES

Every Indian cricket fan claims a special kinship with Sachin Tendulkar. Mine is this: he played his first Test in November 1989, and I published my first book in that same month. For much of his professional career, this historian had his work diverted and his life enriched by the magic of Tendulkar at the crease. I watched him bat many times live, and many more times on the TV. I marvelled at the range of his strokeplay, at his commanding control of both the Test and the one-daygame, at his extraordinary ability to master different wickets, grounds and bowling attacks, and above all, at the cool authority and understated calm with which he bore, for a full quarter of a century, the absurdly inflated and sometimes maniacal expectations of millions of his countrymen.

I was living in Delhi when Sachin Tendulkar made his debut tour of Pakistan, and it was in my old college common room-sitting with students a decade and a half younger than me-that I saw snatches of the sixteen-year-old bat, resolutely keeping out Waqar Younis and Wasim Akram while stroking Abdul Qadir for handsome boundaries. I first saw Sachin in the flesh in a Wills Trophy match at the Feroz Shah Kotla in 1990, shortly after that tour of Pakistan. He did not bat in that match; but I remember, most vividly, his alarm and nervousness as hordes of fans rushed towards him as he went out to field, clutching at his sleeve, his cap, his foot, his arm, as is their wont.

Three years later, by which time he was an established Test star, I watched Tendulkar play for India against Zimbabwe at the Kotla. He was involved in a long stand with his childhood friend and schoolmate Vinod Kambli. Zimbabwe had one top-class spinner, John Traicos, who, although now over forty years of age, still had a fine high action, immaculate control, and subtle changes of flight. While Kambli came down the wicket and drove Traicos hard and high, Tendulkar stayed in the crease and deftly worked him past slip and behind square leg for twos and threes.

He looked set for a hundred, but then, when he was about 70, mistimed a drive off an unknown fellow named Ujesh Ranchod.

He was caught at extra-cover by Traicos, diving full-length in front of him. This was Ranchod's first (and last) Test wicket-he is probably bragging about it in Bulawayo still. Kambli went on to score a double-century.

The following February I timed a trip to Bangalore to catch a Test against Sri Lanka. India batted first, and after Navjot Sidhu and Kambli had plundered a rather ordinary attack, Sachin came out to bat just before tea. He started slowly, then accelerated.

Muralitharan was then new to Test cricket, and the master took apart the novice, treating him much as he had done the veteran Traicos, milking him through cuts and sweeps. When the second new ball was taken, Tendulkar creamed the seam bowler Pramodya Wickramasinghe for 18 runs in an over, mostly through the off-side. He had reached 80 not out by stumps. The next morning he proceeded carefully to 96, when he lost his off stump trying to cut the left-arm spinner Don Anurasiri.

LAST week, a digital-educational company landed in a soup for advertisements that promised coding classes for kids as young as six. The ads featured parents who reminded us of the importance of kidsw starting early, and that even little kids could learn coding, create apps, and become CEOs of their own companies – even before they could legally pop open a can of beer!

I know nothing about coding, but having worked as a copywriter, I know a thing or two about advertising. In fact, for decades Indian companies have been promising life-changing transformations by applying fairness creams, or winning dates with Brazilian supermodels by spraying a can of aerosol deodorant. Interestingly, I landed my job as a copywriter after somebody noticed a short story I wrote, and recognised my potential as a fibber-fabricator.

However, encouraging kids as young as six to code was admittedly shocking even for me. The advertisements showed kids getting placed in high-tech IT jobs, at an age when their chief worry should have been speculating about the contents of their lunchboxes. Which begs the question – how early is too early to set one's child out on a career path?

When I was 10 years old, my parents tried their best to keep me as far away from home as possible. Like most children, I spent my evenings meandering about, doing nothing all day. I'd watch TV (which offered ONE channel), walk around the colony, or read a comic if I felt erudite on that day. When elders asked me the dreaded question - 'What do you want to become in life?' - it was a purely rhetorical question. I have answered everything from 'astronaut' to 'astrologer', and nobody pressed on with further questions. My parents did send me to music classes once, but the teacher heard my voice and decided I wasn't worthy of being imparted the great musical legacy of the masters.

For today's kids however, the sky's the limit in terms of possibilities. But as a great philosopher (probably) said, with great gadgets come great parental pressure. Children of today are expected to be taller, stronger, sharper than their parents; to have whiter teeth, smoother skin, and embark on the journey of an IT engineer before puberty strikes its deadly blow. But then, why stop at coding for kids? Why not explore other career paths?

Why not an online course for young politicians? Where children make promises to their parents and never come good on them? Or a course for young goondas - who eat up others' tiffin boxes and beat up their classmates during recess?

I am conversant in five languages, but Java and C++ are not among them. I picked up most of my knowledge of computers by visiting Internet cafes that promised beautiful girls in my area waiting for me. The only time I was invested in software and coding was at the peak of the Y2K fear. We were told that all the computers of the world would stop working from Dec 31, 1999. When I found that the world really hadn't come to a standstill in the new millennium, my interest towards computing and software receded dramatically.

But my heart goes out to the kids of today. Technology might have transformed the way we lead our lives, but it failed to ease the pressure applied by Indian parents. The kids of today have the option of doing anything in the world, but lack the luxury of doing nothing all day.

Speaking about the book, Amish said in a statement, "Our ancients said that stories are a vehicle to understanding philosophies. And at the heart of all Indian schools of philosophies is the apparently simple, but also hugely complex question: What is Dharma? If we can understand Dharma to some extent, we can lead a more meaningful life. And isn't that what all of us seek? This conversation is even more important as we are confronted with a series of back-breaking challenges these days: Pandemics, climate change, conflicts between nations, breakdown of community & family structures."

Christopher Nolan criticises HBO Max; calls it 'worst streaming service'

CE FEATURES

FILMMAKEr Christopher Nolan is unhappy with the latest development at the Warner Bros Studio.

In a statement to The Hollywood Reporter, the Tenet director criticised the studio for its decision to release its 2021-slated films in both theatres and on its streaming service HBO Max simultaneously. "Some of our industry's biggest filmmakers and most important movie stars went to bed the night before thinking they were working for the greatest movie studio and woke up to find out they were working for the worst streaming service," he said.

Ann Sarnoff, the Chairman and CEO of WarnerMedia Studios and Networks Group, along with Toby Emmerich, the Chairman of Warner Bros. film studio dropped a huge bombshell when they decided that all the 17 films that are slated for release in 2021 will debut on the streaming platform the same day it hits the theatres.

Nolan, who has had a fruitful relationship with Warners, dating back to his 2002 feature Insomnia furthermore added, "Warner Bros. had an incredible machine for getting a filmmaker's work out everywhere, both in theaters and in the home.
